2 Motorcyclists Dead After Crashing Into Parked Auto

R. L. Cressler and Richard Morsehead Dead Following Accident on Saugerties Road Late Wednesday Evening When Their Motorcycle Struck Auto of Burdett Clark—Clark and Companion Uninjured—Held on Manslaughter Charge.

Two men are dead as the result of a collision between their motorcycle in which they were riding and a parked car on Glenerie hill shortly before ten o'clock Wednesday night.

They are Richard L. Cressler, 34, of 468 Broadway, proprietor of the motorcycle and bicycle shop opposite the old armory, who was driving the motorcycle and Richard Morsehead, 45, of 52 Grand street, who was riding with him.

It was about ten o'clock when the sheriff's office was notified of the accident. Deputy Sheriff Abram Molyneaux and Trooper Coons, who had just come in with a prisoner, went at once to the scene, after putting in a call for the W. N. Conner ambulance.

They found the motorcycle lying across the road, against the fence, with the terribly injured men lying unconscious nearby. The men were picked up and taken at once in the ambulance driven by Arthur Keator to the Kingston Hospital. Morsehead died before arriving at the hospital and Cressler died about 3:45 this morning, despite the efforts of Drs. Snyder and Krom.

From information secured by the officers the two men were returning from the direction of Saugerties when nearly at the top of Glenerie hill their machine struck the left rear fender of a car owned by Burdett Clark of 150 Wall street, which was parked along the westerly side of the road. The motorcycle shot across the road and landed against the fence. One of the men had evidently struck first in the center of the road as indicated by blood stains at that point.

Neither Clark nor Miss Matilda Decker of 137 St. James street, who was with him in the car at the time, were injured.

Clark was arrested on a charge of manslaughter and was paroled in custody of his uncle, William Hogan, pending arraignment before Justice Walter Webber of Lake Katrine this morning.

Richard LeRoy Cressler is the son of Charles E. and Bessie Poorman Cressler of 468 Broadway and besides his parents is survived by one brother, Raymond E. Cressler.

His funeral will be held from the chapel of A. Carr & Son, 1 Pearl street, Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Interment will be in Wiltwyck cemetery.

Friends wishing to view the remains may do so Friday afternoon and evening at Carr's.

Richard H. Morsehead was born in this city, the son of William and the late Elizabeth Bailey Morsehead, and was 45 years old. Besides his father, who resides in Atlantic City, he is survived by his wife who before marriage was Miss Matilda Hasselman; two children, a son, Richard K., and a daughter, Evelyn M., and a brother, William Morsehead, of Chicago.

Mr. Morsehead's mother died when he was very young and he made his home with Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bailey of this city up until his marriage. For a number of years he was employed at the Weishaupt butcher shop on Delaware avenue and had been employed at the Great Bull Market since it opened. Fraternally he was a member of Charles De Witt Council, Jr., O. U. A. M., and was a man who was held in high esteem by a wide circle of friends.

Funeral services will be held from the late home, 52 Grand street, on Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock with interment in Montrepose cemetery.

Burdett Clark, whose automobile was involved in the accident, was held in $1,500 bail on a manslaughter charge when arraigned before Justice Walter Weber at Lake Katrine this morning.

MRS. BROPHY INJURED IN COLLISION OF AUTOMOBILES

Mrs. Nicholas Brophy of 128 Fairview avenue, Kingston, was injured about the arm and shoulder about 8 o'clock Wednesday evening, when the Plymouth car driven by her husband, with whom she was riding, was struck by a Buick sedan driven by William Bonner of 425 W. 160th street, New York city. The two cars were proceeding north along the Plank Road, not far from the city, at the time. Mrs. Brophy's injuries were treated by Dr. F. E. O'Connor. The sheriff's office was notified and Deputy Abram Molyneaux made an investigation.

Simeon Ford Dead, Was "Mine Host"

Rye, N. Y., Aug. 31 (AP).—Funeral services will be held tomorrow for Simeon Ford, retired hotel man who became famous for after-dinner speeches. He died of a heart attack yesterday on the eve of his 78th birthday.

As "mine host" at the old Grand Union Hotel in New York city from 1881 to 1914, he became known to thousands of Americans and foreign visitors.

"I date back," he said recently, "to the time when we got rich selling roast beef and boiled potatoes for 30 cents, and if you tipped the waiter ten cents he would wipe his hands and shake with you if you'd stand for it. Every hotel man in those days had a diamond cluster and a pair of trotting horses and a bunch of wistaria springing from his Adam's apple."

He wrote his own epitaph, saying: "Here lies Simeon Ford, a poor hotel keeper. But weep not, gentle stranger, lying comes easy to a hotel keeper. On such and such a day he bit the dust—the first decent bite he's had in years."

"Who Hit Huey Club" Seeks Man Who Really Did Job, Many Deny

List of Those Mentioned Who Blacked Eye of Louisiana "Kingfish" Include Noted Fliers, a Police Chief and Several Prominent Men—All Deny It.

New York, Aug. 31 (AP)—The list of men who did not punch Senator Huey P. Long lengthened today as the saga of the kingfish and the shiner remained a mystery tale without a denouncement.

Noted fliers, a police chief, socially prominent professional men,—all have been named as the person who scored the knockdown in the Sands Point Club's washroom—but all have declined the nomination. Here are some of them:

1—Alford J. Williams, six-footer, former crack pilot for the navy, former ace footballer for Fordham. Told by the Daily News of a belief that he was the socker, he replied very calmly: "It's news to me. Furthermore, it's news to me that any of my friends would think such a thing of me."

2—Clarence Chamberlin, another famous flier, said he was in the washroom at "just about" the critical moment. But did he do the hitting? Oh, no! Did he see it done?" Oh, my, no!

3—Police Chief Steve Webber of Port Washington, Long Island, weighs 220 and has a large right fist with what some newspaper called a bruise on its knuckles. Denying "officially" that he was the man, he said: "I don't want to be popular. I'd rather hold my job. I was in the washroom but you've got to say I didn't do it."

4—Roberts B. Thomas, Park avenue lawyer, as quoted in the New York Herald-Tribune: "I'd be perfectly willing to take credit if I'd done it, but I wasn't there."

5—Kenneth M. Murchison, a socially prominent architect, was quoted in the same paper as saying he didn't do it, but knew what happened and thought the man who did the punching "deserving of commendation."

The New York Times said that Philadelphia Jack O'Brien expressed sympathy for Senator Long over the skepticism with which some quarters greeted his story of being "ganged." O'Brien said that when he was knocked out by Joe Walcott in Boston 30 years or so ago, ringside customers saw only one opponent standing over him. O'Brien said he saw four or five, but could get no one to believe he'd been ganged.

HOSIERY STRIKERS AND POLICE CLASH, ONE KILLED

Philadelphia, Aug. 31 (AP)—One man was killed and at least a dozen persons injured today as rioting silk hosiery strikers and sympathizers clashed with police at the Cambria hosiery mills, in the northeastern part of the city.

The dead man was Clem H. Norwood, one of the strikers. He was shot in the head during a melee which followed the attempt of 12 workers to enter the plant in a truck.

Pickets rushed the truck and upset it, injuring a number of the occupants.

Several shots were fired, hitting Norwood and two other demonstrators and throwing the pickets, estimated by police at 2,800, into wild excitement.

More than 200 police were rushed to the scene and battled the demonstrators for more than an hour.

Eleven persons, including a police sergeant and two women, were taken to hospitals and a number of other persons, said to have been occupants of the truck, were injured. The latter group gained the safety of the plant.

Drunk, He Climbed On The Water Wagon

Frank Smith, 23, of This city Imbibed Too Much Strong Water and Climbed Aboard City Water Wagon to Sleep Off His Jag—Other Cases in Police Court.

Frank Smith, 23, of Wrentham street, visited too many drink emporiums on Wednesday with the result that he became intoxicated. While passing through Acker Place he spied one of the city's water wagons parked near the board of public works building and decided that he had better get aboard the sprinkler. That was where the police found him curled up in the seat on the water wagon and snoring with gusto. This morning in police court Smith pleaded guilty to the charge and was fined $5 by Judge Charles de la Vergne.

Guiseppe Pesce, 17, of Katsbaan, was arrested Wednesday by Robert Strickland of East St. James street, a driver for the Roosa taxi service. Strickland charged Pesce with colliding with his taxi and leaving the scene of an accident, and also with driving a truck with defective brakes. That day Judge Culloton fined Pesce $2 for leaving the scene of the accident without giving his name, and adjourned the hearing on defective brakes until today when Judge de la Vergnefined Pesce $2 on that charge. Pesce informed the judge that since the accident Wednesday he had had the brakes fixed on the truck.

Following a trial in police court on Wednesday before Judge Culloton, Scott Van Demark and William Mowers, both of Converse street, were found guilty of disorderly conduct and fined $5 each, while Ruth Van Demark of the same address was found not guilty and discharged. The trio were arrested on August 20, by John Leonard of Converse street, and the hearings had been adjourned to Wednesday. The trio were represented by Attorney Daniel Hoffman while Attorney Palmer Canfield appeared for Leonard.

Prominent Publisher Dead At Saratoga

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 31 (AP)—Saratoga county today mourned the death of John K. Walbridge, 62, prominent publisher, banker and former county official.

Stricken with apoplexy late yesterday while dictating to a stenographer, Mr. Walbridge died an hour later in his office in the building where for the past 33 years he had published "The Saratogian," a daily newspaper.

Always in the background personally, preferring the voice of his newspaper, Mr. Walbridge had campaigned relentlessly for reform of city and county government and for various civic projects in his community.

Interested in Saratoga county politics for many years up until a few years ago, he sought and won political office only once—the county treasurership which he held from 1912 to 1918, the remainder of the time contented to act as counsel for his party. He was a Republican.

S. S. Washington at Sea, Aug. 31 (AP).—Norman H. Davis does not want to talk about war debts, he says, when he reaches Europe again as American ambassador-at-large. The policy of making war debt concessions conditional on European disarmament "had its inception during the Hoover administratoin" he declared in an interview, adding he is happy that "the government since March has wisely taken the view the two questions must be isolated."

Watkins, who lost his life on an Arctic expedition in which Scott participated. Scott was a dog team driver for the British Arctic Air Route Expedition of 1930-31, which Watkins led.

Roosevelt Awaits Data on Ford Before Taking Any Action

Refusal, So Far, of Henry Ford to Subscribe to NRA Code of Auto Industries Gets Attention From President.

New York, Aug. 31 (AP)—The V-8 and the NRA, symbols of far more than a mere motorcar and a mere blue eagle, are engaged today in a race for principle of an untried speedway.

At the wheel of the car is Henry Ford. Riding the eagle is General Hugh S. Johnson. Behind the one is a lifetime of invention and industrialism raised to a science. Behind the other is high resolve, laudable purpose—and the law.

The umpire is the President of the United States.

For Henry Ford who dedicated one of the world's monster industries to shorter hours and a minimum wage, the NRA flat to sign up or face whatever music the administration should elect to play may quite conceivably be climatic in a strictly personal way, leaving entirely aside its economic aspects. He has, in a decree, dedicated his industrialism to the development of efficiency aimed at personal benefit to both his consumer public and his employes.

At a time when employer and employe in the motor as well as other major trades were in economic conflict, each seeking advantage according to his lights, Ford pioneered with the five dollar-a-day minimum wage; pioneered, that is, among the big employers. Falling by reason of his position into the class called "capital", he fought none the less to function independently of "capital", and often contrary to it.

Henry Ford has lived his industrial career along these lines. He has never favored unionization of his employes, and his weapon against unionism has been to provide working conditions and wages which he felt met or even exceeded those which unions required. In a way, his stand has been much the same toward organized labor as it appears to be today toward the motor industry code; a standard fully up to the requirements, yet aloof from them.

The determination of General Johnson not to permit the Ford Motor Company to be an exception to a national program for prosperity is predicated on the same ground as that taken by Ford on the other side; that is, that a definite, carefully prepared program shall not be hampered merely because one viewpoint opposes it.

Ford is a personality as well as an employer. A public interest serves to magnify the issues involved. The action of the president in interesting himself personally in the situation has added to the public importance.

Should Ford fail to sign the code by September 5—which is the date when it becomes operative and binding—, the gauntlet would be down. The NRA administration then would have three courses open. It could provide a separate code for Ford. (General Johnson has said he would not follow this course). It could withhold the Blue Eagle and, in so doing, single out the company from all the others and thus, possibly, create a public opinion which might react against the manufacturer's products.

The third course would be to license the motor car industry under the National Recovery Act, and seek punishment of any firm operating without a permit. The law provides a fine of $500 and six months imprisonment. Each day's operation of a company is regarded, by the language of the act, as a separate offense.

"BLONDE TIGRESS" GETS SENTENCE OF 199 YEARS

Chicago, Aug. 31 (AP).—Mrs. Eleanor Jarman, called the "Blond Tigress" by police because of her alleged participation in holdups, was under a 199 year sentence today following her conviction on a charge of murder in connection with the recent slaying of Gustave Hoeh, 71, in her haberdashery.

Mrs. Jarman's companions, George Dale, her alleged sweetheart, and Leo Minneci were convicted at the same time. Dale, accused of being the actual slayer, was sentenced to death in the electric chair, while Minneci received a 199 year prison sentence when a jury in criminal court returned its verdict last night.

Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy, Grand Marshal, Heads 7,000 Marchers and 100 Floats in Gigantic Demonstration to Restore Prosperity, Alleviate Unemployment, and Gloom of Depression—All the City Turns Out For Huge Affair.

Thousands of people, making up one of the largest crowds ever assembled downtown, gathered shortly after noon today to take part in the big NRA parade that moved from the lower end of the city to the upper, passing through lanes of cheering spectators who urged the marchers on in the cause of prosperity and better times.

The marchers, more than 7,000 in number, according to estimates of the parade committee, began to gather early for the big parade which was scheduled to get off promptly at 2 o'clock at the order of "forward march" from Grand Marshal Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy.

The line of march was planned as follows: From Hasbrouck avenue up East Strand to Broadway, up Broadway to Albany avenue, to Clinton avenue, to Main street, to Fair street, to North Front street, to Wall street, to Pearl street, to Albany avenue, to Broadway, down Broadway to the city hall where the parade disbanded.

In the lead was a police escort on motorcycles—Officers Henry Barmann, Elbert Soper, Clarence Brophy, Thomas McCardle and Fred Gerhardt.

Fifty or more Boy Scouts, bearing a gigantic United States flag and the colors of the NRA with a big Blue Eagle, acted as color bearers and color guards.

Riding in cars were the following city officials: Mayor Eugene B. Carey, Alderman-at-Large Conrad J. Heiselman and the board of aldermen on a large float.

Then came Grand Marshal Joseph L. Murphy, chief of the fire department, and Deputy Grand Marshal J. Allan Wood, chief of police.

47 Deaths From Sleeping Sickness

St. Louis, Aug. 31, (AP).—As the "sleeping sickness" epidemic here entered its second month with a toll of 47 deaths and 362 additional cases of illness, a post-mortem study of the disease, made public today, disclosed that 50 per cent of the fatalities had resulted when victims had other health complications.

These clinical observations, made by scientists at St. Louis University, were included in a report to Surgeon General Hugh S. Cummings of the United States Public Health Service who was here this week making a personal inspection of the situation. Hardening of the arteries and high blood pressure were given as the most common complications.

During the last day, only two deaths have been reported—the smallest number in several days—but 42 additional cases have been diagnosed as encephalitis.

In a copyrighted story written for The Associated Press Dr. Cummings described the disease as an inflammation of the brain itself.

"Epidemic encephalitis, or 'sleeping sickness,'" he said, "is an inflammation of the brain itself, with a moderate involvement of the meninges, or covering of the spinal cord.

"It is one of the group known as virus diseases, the ultramicroscopic germ having thus far proven impossible of isolation. Its carriers remain unknown.

Dr. Cumming was high in his praise of the part played by the newspapers during such an epidemic.

"My experience is that the press is the most valuable adjunct of the Public Health Service in meeting such epidemics," he wrote. "It gives the people information for their protection. By promptly reporting the outbreak in other cities than the one principally affected, it gives our service information vital to its studies."

The big urn was filled with steaming hot coffee and as it blew up the contents were hurled onto the two women. Plan Flower Show At St. Remy Church

Plans are progressing for the Flower Show to be held in the Sunday School room of the St. Remy Reformed Church on the afternoon and evening of September 20.

The rules for entering are very simple and it is hoped that all lovers of flowers will exhibit their choice of either cut flowers or potted plants. Names of exhibitors must not be attached to exhibits until after the judges have made the awards and all exhibits must be grown by the exhibitor.

All exhibits must be in place and marked at 12 noon on the day of the show. Specimens may be entered in one class and for one premium. No exhibitor will be allowed more than one premium in the same class and all exhibitors must furnish their own containers and no awards will be given for unworthy specimens.

The judges have already been selected and 4-H Club members and their leaders of Rifton, Ulster Park and St. Remy are interested in the exhibit. Barnard Joy, county leader of the 4-H Clubs, met with the committee at a recent meeting and plans are being formulated whereby the 4-H members are to be given special ribbon prizes for their exhibits.

The committee in charge decided to ask exhibits from Ulster Park, Rifton, New Salem, Eddyville, Port Ewen, Rosendale, and Bloomington, also Kingston. Owing to the fact that this exhibit is a new venture for this locality, no cash prizes will be offered this year but should enough interest be shown, and it should be decided to make this show an annual event, no doubt another year's plans will begin earlier in the season and cash prizes will be offered for the best displays.

Among the special features already decided upon in connection with the Flower Show is an arrangement of thrift tables, a fancy article booth and a cake and candy booth. A cafeteria supper will be served by the ladies of the church from five until all are served. A small admission will be charged to see the exhibit.

OBSERVATORY IS MECCA FOR MANY

Thousands Visit Lick Memorial in California.

San Jose, Calif.—Although isolated on the summit of Mt. Hamilton at an altitude of 4,209 feet and accessible by driving 27 miles over a circuitous mountain highway, Lick observatory has become one of the most alluring trips for tourists in this section of California.

More than 10,000 visitors will journey to the summit of Mt. Hamilton this year to see the costly instruments through which astronomers nightly peer heavenward, seeking knowledge from the stars.

If visitors chance to climb the mountain on Saturday evenings, they are privileged to gaze through the 36-inch refractor, which magnifies the aureole of the astral bodies.

Despite its isolated location, Lick observatory has developed a model village atop the lofty mountain. Its population has grown during the past five years to fifty. There is a public school, owned by the observatory, with a teacher provided by the state.

The observatory, which is maintained and operated by the University of California, consists of a main building, containing the telescope domes, offices, computing rooms, a library of 8,000 books and 5,000 pamphlets; detached buildings containing safe deposit rooms and photographic dark rooms, houses for the workers; instrument shops, pumping stations, and several workshops. It was completed in 1888, at a cost of $61,000.

James Lick, who donated funds for building and maintaining the widely-known observatory, was born in Fredericksburg, Md., August 15, 1796, and died in San Francisco, October 1, 1876. His remains are buried in the supporting pier of the 36-inch equatorial telescope, which was the largest telescope in the world at the time it was constructed.

Cook Has Fed Condemned Murderers for 14 Years

New Orleans.—Twenty-five men who partook of Steve Elliot's cooking never lived to tell the tale. They were men condemned to death at parish prison, where Elliot was cook. He served breakfast to condemned men for 14 years, and just recently was promoted to the wardership of the attorney's room at the prison.

Elliot said good food always helped the men who were scheduled to die. "It bucked up their courage and made them walk to the gallows with firmer step," he said.

Asked about the most unusual breakfast for a condemned man, Elliot recounted the following tale:

"Um, now, let's see," he said. "Yes, there was a negro who popped a hard one on us at the last moment. We always tried to satisfy, you know. He wanted 'possum and 'possum he got. We didn't know where it was to be had, but some kind citizen sent one to us. You should have seen that negro eat!

"He went upstairs to his death with a grin, wiping his mouth, happy that his appetite was satisfied."

Condemned men were given more consideration than other prisoners, Elliot said. "For instance, if they wanted to eat between meals they only had to say what they wanted. Sometimes it was a sandwich, flapjacks, milk or toast. Most of them liked fried chicken and ice cream for their last meal."

Elliot said his wife taught him how to cook.

Nurse Won War Honors; Now Without Homeland

Buffalo, N. Y.—Mrs. Henriette Khoury, British war nurse, who was decorated for bravery under fire, is "a woman without a country."

She has been barred from Canada after living there seven years. She is living here now, but as she has no legal standing in the United States, she is facing possible deportation.

Mrs. Khoury, who was born in Beirut, Syria, entered Canada seven years ago and became operator of a beauty shop in Toronto. Last January she visited friends in New York. She became ill, and when she finally tried to enter Canada again she was halted because she had overstayed her leave. Although she had been naturalized in Canada, it was discovered that the naturalization had been illegal.

She has tried in vain to receive permission to stay in this country and her case has been referred to the Canadian legation at Washington and the United States immigration authorities there.

Hen Kills Rattlesnake

Healdsburg, Calif.—Attracted to the barnyard by a commotion, Mrs. John Roux found a rattlesnake with its body pierced in two places and its head nearly pecked off. A victorious Rhode Island Red has strutted nearby.

Blue Jays Aid in Capture of Eagle

Kansas City, Mo.—Jimmy Duffy, with the aid of a flock of blue jays, captured an American eagle with a garden rake in the rear yard of his home in Kansas City.

The eagle was busy repulsing an attack by the blue jays when Duffy hooked its feet with the rake and dragged it from its perch in a tree.

The eagle had a wing-spread of seven feet.

A Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

WASHINGTON—Jim Couzens of Michigan, in or out of the senate, is just about as caustic, outspoken and hard-boiled an individual as anyone ever encountered when something comes up that displeases him.

JAMES COUZENS

He'll fight at the drop of a hat anybody or anything and usually a good-sized scrap has taken place before he gets through.

But there's one particular thing that will rile the gray haired senator perhaps more quickly than any other. And that is for someone to do anything that he thinks will harm unfortunate or under-privileged children.

* * *

SUCH little chaps have been Couzens' hobby for years. He has given liberally of his millions that they might have a chance to win back their health and happiness.

That's one of the reasons he became so infuriated on the witness stand the other day in Detroit, where he was testifying in regard to banking practices in that city prior to the state bank holiday.

For The Youngsters

BACK in 1929 Couzens established a $10,000,000 trust fund which, with its income, estimated to amount to $7,500,000 additional, was to be spent in full within 25 years to promote the health and happiness of the children of Michigan and elsewhere.

There's an interesting story told as to how the senator came to establish this fund.

Couzens got into a terrific row with Andrew W. Mellon when the latter was secretary of the treasury over the collection of additional taxes from him and other minority stockholders of the Ford Motor company.

The senator previously had aroused the ire of "Uncle Andy" by demanding a senatorial investigation of the internal revenue bureau.

It is said that Couzens, during this fight over the tax collection, made the promise that if he won out he would give the entire amount to charity.

He did win. Had he lost he would have had to pay the government $9,455,902.10 plus the interest. The trust fund was set up in 1929, less than a year after his victory.

Hitting A Sore Spot

ON THE witness stand in Detroit the other day he charged that a bank there had "jockeyed the children's fund of Michigan out of $300,000" by selling the fund "participation certificates" based on real estate mortgages and pleading a temporary stringency of funds when payment became due. The fund management was asked to take "certificates of deposit" instead.

The bank closed before all the certificates were cashed.

Couzens is now demanding that the prosecuting attorney investigate with a view to possible criminal proceedings.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Des Moines, Aug. 31 (AP).—His mouth was wide open but he couldn't explain his difficulty.

That's what happened to Lloyd Mussell, 22, when his jawbones "locked" in a bank building. Police took him to a hospital and a doctor shut his mouth.

Now It's Your Turn

Canton, Ill.—The city's jail being only large enough for two persons at a time, a problem arose when eight youths were sentenced to serve six days each for a theft of a ten cent watermelon.

Modern Age Teacher

Cincinnati—Rules for being a good teacher, as promulgated by Dr. C. R. Campbell, president of the Hamilton county board of education, before a county teachers' institute:

"Read detective stories.
"Own movie cameras.
"Own radios.
"Read twelve good books a year.
"Keep a close mouth.
"Attend community dances.
"Use the rod in front of other pupils, but only rarely."

The idea, he said, is to get a youthful viewpoint and stick to it.

Lucky Sign?

Berlin—A good omen for the new regime is seen in the fact that storks have multiplied in Germany along with the growth of the Hitler movement, says the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, a sporting journal. In eastern Saxony alone, the number of storks' nests have more than doubled in the last five years.

The Winner:

Hyde Park, N. Y.—Meet a winner. His name is Kerr Deal. He's a saddle horse, the gift of the people of Missouri to President Roosevelt. Yesterday, with the President's son John on his back, he took first prize in the saddle horse class at the county fair. The President and the First Lady were there to witness the triumph.

Hiawatha Land

The upper peninsula of Michigan is Hiawatha land and provided the background for much of Longfellow's poem. At Mackinac, Mich., Schoolcraft wrote the Hiawatha legend which Longfellow used for his poem.

Highways now are designated on airway maps by solid purple lines, instead of the parallel black lines formerly used for this purpose.

Next Maverick Play "It's A Wise Child"

Opening Friday, September 1, and running through Labor Day weekend the Maverick Theatre will offer David Belasco's last success "It's a Wise Child." This is a play that ran for 365 days with continuous laughter at the Belasco Theatre, New York, and was reviewed last season for another successful run.

Edwin O'Manlon, the managing director of the Maverick Theatre, has been fortunate enough to secure the services of several members of the original New York cast for the production at the Maverick; among whom are George Pembroke, Frank Lindsay and Louis Pennywell, and Miss Marie Hunt, well-known character woman. Also Arthur Wills, Allen Nourse, Virginia Burchfield and Florence Moody. Augusta French, the blonde who gave such a pleasing and amusing performance of the title role in "Lulu", last week, will have an important part in "It's a Wise Child."

J. S. McLaughlin who did the Senator so well in "Lulu", will also be casted.

Production of electricity for public use decreased in Iowa, Nebraska and South Dakota in April and May this year compared with last year.

Guardian of Mankind

Akbar, famed Mongolian emperor, won the title of Guardian of Mankind because of the benevolence of his rule and at the same time the devoted zeal in which he sought to regain lost sections of the once vast empire which had broken away under long periods of misrule before Akbar ascended the throne. He devoted himself to the development of commerce with the lost provinces until the ties of business interest were so great the further tie of political interests was easily accomplished.

During his reign, he fostered religious tolerance among the many conflicting religions of Mongolia and he established and developed a school system which went far toward earning him his title of guardian. For many generations after his death in 1605, he was held up as a model of rulers throughout India and other portions of Asia.

Briton Became Pope

Adrian, the name chosen by six popes, was the name of the only British churchman to become head of the Roman Catholic church. Adrian IV was the son of a poor English family named Breakspeare, he being baptized Nicholas. Seeking his fortune in Paris, he became an excellent and gifted student, noted for his zeal and his learning. He entered the priesthood and eventually became an abbot. His next step upward was to the Sacred college, and in 1154, he became pope. He was vigorous in his religious leadership and strict in upholding all the power and authority which his holy office gave to him. He died in 1159.

GOLF DANGERS

The death of another prominent business man in a golf game has resulted in many inquiries as to whether it is safe for middle-aged men to play golf. A physician replies that he would ascribe few of such deaths to the game itself, and that business men in general probably prolong their lives, rather than shorten them, by playing it. There is no reason, he says, why a man of 40 should not take as much exercise as a man of 25. Between 40 and 70, of course, there is a difference. A man of 60 should not be so strenuous as a man of 40. It is well for elderly men to go easy, and especially not to climb hills too fast. Their own doctors can give them good advice.

The biggest danger is the spirit of keen competition, taking the game too seriously, and leading to exertion beyond their strength. Drawing upon the last ounce of energy, of course, is bad. It is bad for anyone, though a young man will not believe it.

SCOTCH WHISKEY

The approaching end of American prohibition is good news to Scotland. A whiskey boom there is expected to begin about the first of next year. It will be particularly welcome because the world depression has hit the distillers very hard. Of 116 distilleries in Scotland, only four have been working this year. Now they are getting inquiries every day for options on whiskey in lots from 1,000 to 100,000 gallons.

Scotland has what amounts to a corner on her famous product, holding four-fifths of the 185,000,000 gallons in bond. She will have her market and her price, especially in America. And golf, Scotland's other famous gift to the world, will probably boom again. It might be supposed that Americans, with the course they have had in the production of synthetic liquor the last dozen years, could supply their demand for Scotch without depending on Scotland. But they have never learned how to give it the peat smoke flavor.

DOPED HORSES

There is a narcotic scandal in horse-racing. Federal investigators say not less than 250 horses have been doped at race tracks in Chicago and elsewhere, largely in the South, this year. Federal indictments have been returned against ten turfmen. These defendants, together with race horse owners, managers, trainers and track employes, are charged with violation of the Harrison anti-narcotic act.

Millions of racing fans, however, will probably keep right on betting their money, in the naive assumption that all horse-racing is on the level and that they can trust the racing "dope", or profit through their own judgment, guesses or dreams. If they ever read any history, they might know that horses have been doped since the time of Tiberius Caesar—and doubtless eons before his day. But wher did a racing fan bother with history?

MINISTER REBELS

A Congregational minister in Sandwich, England, resigning his pastorate, makes a statement likely to provoke discussion. "I am not an irreligious man," he says, "but a distaste for church work has grown upon me. What the average church seems to want today in the pulpit is a sort of tame parrot that will twitter forth pretty platitudes Sunday by Sunday and flit from house to house making itself pleasant for the rest of the week. I am a young man 32 years old, and if events take their normal course I have at least 30 years more of active life before me. Would you choose to spend those years trotting around trying to please and pacify disgruntled and petulant church-goers? I do not think you would, and I am not going to try. I would rather earn my bread with pick and shovel. The position of minister is no longer consistent with the dignity of man. All over the country ministers are restless and unhappy."

There is unrest and unhappiness in many a pulpit in other countries, too. The status of ministers is seldom what it used to be. Have they themselves changed, or their parishioners, or the times? Will the ministry rise again to its old dignity and power? And if so, how will the improvement come about? The man making the complaint given above, quite evidently does not belong in the ministry and will be happier and more useful in some other work. But a good many ministers still find their position consistent with the dignity of man. There is transition in the form of religion going on. But through those who have the real calling still pours the divine fire.

It will be a fortunate day for this country when silly quests for the "most beautiful" woman, the "healthiest" boy or girl, the "most perfect" baby, and so on, are dropped. They never prove anything, because they never cover the whole field. They do harm by the heart-burnings they cause, the disappointment and envy, and the false standards they set up. They intensify the besetting folly of American life, which is frenzied competition in unimportant things. They promote the silly love for superlatives which is an American weakness, seen at its worst and funniest in a circus handbill. These competitions and their unwholesome emotions will never be killed, though, by solemn condemnation. The only way is to laugh at them.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

THE MARGIN OF SAFETY.

Ane of the subjects the engineer must study is "strength of materials" so that if he builds a building or bridge he knows just what is needed to support that building or bridge when it is carrying its heaviest load.

In order to make the structure safe, he makes it stronger than is necessary to support this heaviest load, and this extra strength is spoken of as the "margin of safety."

What about that body of yours? Is it built with this margin of safety, so that if undue stress or strain is put upon it, it will be able to withstand it?

A first year medical student, or anyone who has given the body even a slight amount of study knows that practically all parts of the body from the bones outward to the skin, have a margin of safety surpassing anything designed by man.

You need food and water every day, yet men have done without food for 40 days, and without water for 7 to 10 days, because the fat on the body and the water in and among the tissues have been able to maintain life.

The heart beats 72 times to the minute, but it can, if necessary, beat twice as fast and pump twice as much blood as it normally does.

Nature has provided you with two eyes, two ears, two kidneys, two lungs, and in many cases two glands for various purposes, yet even when there are two organs or glands it is possible to have all of one and part of another destroyed and yet the body will continue to do its work.

Research laboratory physicians have been able to show that four-fifths of the pancreas can be destroyed and the remaining one-fifth will manufacture the insulin needed by the body. Similarly with the liver. Despite all its different jobs in the system—breaking up fats, storing sugar, removing poisons from the blood, manufacturing bile, helping to color the blood—three-quarters of the liver may be destroyed and yet it will carry on all the above jobs.

The stomach can be entirely removed, half the small intestine and nearly all of the large intestine removed without damage to the body.

In addition to this your body can actually repair itself when something is injured or broken down. All it needs is time.

The margin of safety then in that body of yours is really beyond human comprehension.

The HIDDEN DOOR

BY FRANK L. PACKARD

Manhattan's night haunt, dangerous as a creek, Clarkie Lunn, as told to Benny Malone that the man Colin knocked out on Ernestine's club was Sergeant Malley of the homicide squad. Colin hopes to track down the Mask, ruler of New York's underworld, because the Mask has threatened Colin's life. Benny is an agent of the Mask's, acting for Colin's help at Spanish's he promises to introduce him into the gang which he controls for the Mask. As a preliminary, Colin is sent to Mike Dutch at a certain restaurant.

Chapter 34
A PACKAGE OF W. P.'S

COLIN had obeyed. He had been under observation at the restaurant, that was obvious enough, but he did not know by whom or whether by one or many. Then, later on in the afternoon, Benny Malone had telephoned again, and this time had given him the street and number of a tobacco store where he was to report at half past seven that evening.

If no other customer was in the store at the time, he had been instructed to ask for a package of W. P.'s—otherwise he was to make any purchase he liked that would serve as a pretext for his presence there and wait until he was alone with the proprietor.

Colin's lips compressed on the butt of his cigarette. A package of W. P.'s! The Wine Press! Cap à l'Orage had taught him that! This was more than the thin edge of the wedge—it looked like a wide-flung door with "Welcome" blazoned on the doormat. Or was it the old, old story of the spider and the fly?

It was nearly half-past seven now. He glanced around him. He was approaching an old, elongated, two-story frame building with dormer windows, a relic of New York's early days, that flanked a modern six-story tenement.

It looked as though it had been made over into two houses—at least there were two entrances, one at either end—but, while the one nearer him boasted a narrow porch before its door, the one at the far end seemed to be that of a store, and, judging from the way the house and tenement numbers had been running, it obviously must be the tobacco store he was looking for.

HIS glance, apparently casual, was suddenly critical, absorbing details. He was abreast of the porch now. An old, white-haired man, the only person in the neighborhood who, it would seem, did not feel the heat, for he wore a rusty black, shabby Prince Albert coat buttoned tightly around him, sat there on the porch in a rocking chair, a cane across his knees, intent upon a newspaper which he was reading through steel-rimmed spectacles that straggled far down his nose.

The man did not look up as Colin passed by. Colin did not alter his pace. A curious place, this! Besides the two entrances he had already noted, there was also a third one he now saw, in about the center of the building—a basement entrance from the sidewalk.

This was wide open, and over the head of the doorway at the bottom of the steps there was a "Shoes to Mend" sign. The obvious questions flashed into his mind. If this was the Wine Press, was the cobbler down there a factor—also the old man on the porch?

He halted now in front of the store. The window display had a cheap appearance. White-painted lettering on the panes, the paint scarcely discernible on many a letter, proclaimed the fact that one Michael Barney dealt in cigars, cigarettes, pipes, and tobacco.

It was the store he was looking for undoubtedly—and through the window Colin could see that there was no one inside at the moment except a wizened little man with red hair who stood behind one of the counters.

Colin mounted the three steps from the sidewalk, opened the door, entered, and shut the door behind him. It was a small place. Prosperity did not seem to lurk in the seedy showcases or on the none too generously stocked shelves. There was a public telephone booth in one corner at the rear. Colin nodded pleasantly. The man with the red hair was looking at him inquiringly from across the counter.

"I'd like a package of W. P.'s," Colin requested.

The man nodded in return.

"You're Clarkie Lunn, ain't you?"

"Yes," said Colin.

"I'm Barney," announced the other. "It's all right. I've been looking for you." He jerked his head in the direction of a door at the rear of the store beside the telephone booth. "Go on in there. First room you come to."

"Thanks," said Colin.

HE CROSSED the store, opened the door indicated, and found himself in a narrow passageway. On his left was a closed-in staircase; just a few paces ahead, on his right, was an open door. He reached the latter and paused for an instant on the threshold.

It was quite a sizable room—evidently Mr. Michael Barney's "parlor." Shabby genteel. Knickknacks and china ornaments in profusion, a worn carpet, chairs of the long ago, plush-upholstered, the plush faded and colorless, a horsehair sofa—and on the sofa, sprawled at full length, was Benny Malone.

It was the store Colin wanted.

"Hello, Clarkie!" Benny Malone called out with a grin. "We meet again. How'd'ye like your lunch?"

Colin grinned back.

"You're all to the good, Benny. I was getting the once-over, eh?"

"Sure! I'll say you were! But the gate's wide open for you now. Sit down but leave the door open. Some of the boys are blowing in by and by. Sorry I can't flash a drink," he drooped an eyelid—"but this dump is on the level. Boore, cards, and skirts is ruled out."

"Mr. and Mrs. Barney are just a quiet old pair—got a bedroom where they sleep, and a kitchen where they cook and eat, just behind here along the hall, and a couple of rooms upstairs just because they're there, that they rent sometimes to roomers. There ain't much dough in running a tobacco emporium in these parts. Poor but honest, get me? The pastor of their church comes around regular to see 'em—the cops gave that up long ago!"

Colin slumped down in a chair.

"You mean they're in the know?" he inquired.

Benny Malone laughed.

"What d'ye think! Just as much as I am—or you ever will be unless you get picked out for one of the Mask's big shots. They're undercover stuff."

TAXPAYER TELLS BARBERS HIS OPINION OF THEM

Kingston, N. Y., August 30, 1933
Mr. Editor
Kingston Freeman.
Dear Sir:

Will please publish this article in answer to "Whys and Wherefores." The Master Barbers' Association of Kingston have taken unreasonable advantage of Mr. General Public in raising prices of haircuts and shaves, etc.

To begin with what barbers in the city of Kingston have added any barbers to their present staff to warrant the increase? None.

Why should the public be expected to pay for the half day off on Tuesday given each week and the half hour earlier closing?

Does the Master Barbers' Association realize the present prices are the same as they were during the war when men folks were earning pretty good wages?

Does the Master Barbers' Association realize if the public paid only the prices asked it would not be so bad, but Mr. Journeyman Barber just expects his tips just the same, and these same barbers would snub at a nickel so if you add a dime to each haircut or shave, it means something.

The curse of the American habit of tipping barbers (which is more or less ridiculous) for the reason barbers do not give any special service but their actual routine of work. So you can place the barbers in the class of beggars and grafters and nothing more.

The clerk behind the counter, the bank clerk, the salesman, the butcher and grocer, besides many other lines of employment, never look for tips.

So I think it's about time for the general public to wake up and organize collectively by agreeing that whenever they go for a haircut or shave to refrain from giving any tips. This in a way might cure the evil.

Thanking you in advance for putting this in your paper in the interest of seeing that the public is not gouged.

I am,
Respectfully yours,
11TH WARD TAXPAYER.

STROKES OF GENIUS

by SAMUEL HOPKINS & ALFRED PARKER

LAOCOÖN was a priest of Troy who died in an attempt to save his city. In vain he tried to warn his countrymen against receiving within their walls the wooden horse whereby Ulysses and the Greeks overthrew Troy. As punishment for warning the Trojans, the Greek gods sent two serpents to attack Laocoön's sons while the father was sacrificing a bull at the altar of Poseidon. When Laocoön came to the help of the two boys he, too, was destroyed by the serpents.

This story of patriotic faith is the subject of one of the best known pieces of ancient sculpture still in existence. The famous statue which so tensely represents the bodily pain and passion of the struggle was created almost 2000 years ago. It is the work of Agesander, Polydorus and Athenodorus, three sculptors of Rhodes, Greece.

The wonderful group was discovered in 1506 in the Sette Sale, on the side of the Esquiline Hill in Rome. It was purchased by Pope Julius II, and is now in the Vatican.

Highland Presbyterian Church 125 Years Old

The Presbyterian Church at Highland, which on August 23 sponsored the opening event in a celebration of its 125th anniversary, was organized by the Rev. James I. Ostrom, who was of the Old School Presbyterian persuasion. The domine during his pastorate, which held jointly with that of the Marlborough church, became involved in a controversy with the conservatives of his flock over the slavery question, a social and economic problem which, even during President Jefferson's second administration, was beginning to disturb the minds of our citizenry. Domine Ostrom positively did not believe in slavery, and said so, whereupon he was given notice to leave and was replaced by the Rev. J. A. Beach, under whose pastorate the society at Highland changed from the Old to the New School. The building in which the Presbyterians worshipped at that time was a small, unpretentious structure located on the Modena turnpike, a section which for a number of years was the center of the business life of the village. The ground on which the church edifice stood was donated by Moses Woolsey, an early settler, who with his two sons, Daniel and Robert, resided on the land adjoining.

During the early years of the Presbyterian Church at Highland, it was customary to hold an annual series of services known as a "four days' meeting", being a season of religious revival eagerly anticipated by pious persons for miles around, who came to the meeting afoot, on horseback, and in wagons and ox-carts, bringing their food with them and remaining all day, in much the same manner that Old School Baptists still worship at Shokan and other places where members of that sect maintain a house of worship. Tradition has it that upon the occasion one of these great meetings held at Highland, in the year 1832, the spiritual excitement became so intense that the services were continued over a period of two weeks, during which time some 200 persons were either converted or sought conversion. The meetings were conducted from day to day by Dominie Beach, assisted by the Rev. B. F. Wile, pastor of the church in the Seventies and at the time of the revival a young minister at the Pleasant Valley charge. Following the religious awakening which had its inception at this epochal series of meetings, it became customary for small parties to go from village to village and hold services, the vehicles used for transportation on these trips frequently being ox-carts, while one of the favorite assembly places was a schoolhouse located below Lif. Smith's place.

Some of those who joined the church at the time of the revival meetings were as follows: Abram Eltinge, who ran a freight and passenger sloop between Paltz Landing and New York city; Deye Eltinge, captain of the ferryboat "Dutchess and Ulster"; Mrs. Julia Ransom; Henry Deye and family; Eli Ransom and wife; Josiah DuBois, Delil Pratt, Squire Lake and family, Griffin Carpenter, Jordan Dobbs and family, Reuben Hine, Mrs. Chambers, Joseph Deye, John Coe, Jacob Deyton and family, Nathan Deye and Jacob Deye, Mrs. Phoebe Deye and Mrs. Caroline Pratt were of the Henry Deye family; Mrs. Dr. Hasbrouck and Mrs. Ezekiel Eltinge of Highland, and Captain Luther Eltinge of Poughkeepsie were children of Captain Abram Eltinge.

Still other early settlers whose names are found on the records of the old church were the following: Barnabas Benton, Moses Woolsey, David Gee, Charles Wooley, Benjamin Russell, Elisha Lester, Zopher Perkins, William Hollister, John Halstead, Philip Lemunyan, Josiah Cooper, Lorrain Benton, John Smith, Thomas Tompkins, Mecaja Lewis, Isaac Johnston, Daniel Coe, Henry Carpenter, Daniel W. Ostrom, John Ostrom, Samuel Carpenter, Benjamin Russell, Michael Smith, Nathaniel Kelsey, James Warring, Samuel Hunt, John Stone, Stephen Gidney, Nathan Woolley, Gideon Akins, John Dumont, James Lockwood, John W. Capenter, Henry Perkins, Charles Wells, and James Wygant. Of these early residents of the Highland section, Daniel Ostrom was the proprietor of a woolen mill near Centreville, where the Halsteads also were a pioneer family. The Ransoms and the Coes lived on the old Post Road to Kingston; Josiah Eltinge's place, also occupied by his son, Abram, and grandson, P. L. Eltinge, was located beyond Centreville. Dr. Barnabas Benton, who resided on the place later owned by Abram Benton, was in practice about 1816 and continued a great many years.

Early pastors of the Highland church, other than Domine Ostrom and Domine Beach, were the Rev. Frederick Tuckerman, the Rev. George Delavan, the Rev. Burtis C. Magee, the Rev. A. O. Pollenbit, the Rev. M. F. Liebenau, the Rev. B. F. Wile, and the Rev. Samuel Adriance, who was ordained and installed May 22, 1877. The first elders of the church in the year of its founding were Dr. Barnabas Benton, Moses Woolsey and David Gee. Their successors were G. D. Ostrom, Reuben H. Hine, Joseph S. Conklin, Benjamin E. Ransom, Alfred Lane, John LeRoy, John Bartlett, A. J. Pratt, Moses Deyo, Philip LeRoy, I. C. Dubois, Charles Pratt, Charles Lockwood, and Isaac N. Hammond. The first house of worship, erected soon after the organization of the church, was used for many years. The second building, erected in 1846, was rebuilt and enlarged in 1871.

The Highland Presbyterian Church in 1880 had a membership of 150, and was in a prosperous and growing state. About 100 persons attended the Sunday school, and the library of the school contained over 200 volumes. The superintendent at that time was Charles B. Lockwood. Officers of the church in the early Eighties were as follows: Elders, Alden J. Pratt, who was a fruit grower and assistant U. S. assessor for the 13th District; John Cookingham, fruit grower and farmer who also owned 95 acres of land in Dutchess county; Nathan S. Williams, fruit grower; Charles B. Lockwood, and Philip LeRoy, a farmer residing at Lloyd. The deacons were Albert P. Ford and William Wilcox, the latter being proprietor of a general merchandising store in the village. Trustees were as follows: Levi J. Hasbrouck, fruit grower; Nathan S. Williams, Abram E. Hasbrouck, of the firm of Hasbrouck & Bro.; Oliver J. Tillson, fruit grower and farmer; R. Eltinge DuBois, and John Coe, Jr., a fruit grower and dairyman. The secretary and treasurer was Alden J. Pratt.

Top Notch's Idea

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

They were all back in Puddle Muddle making their plans to raise the money to pay for Rip's license and for the extra week he would have to stay in the pound.

"We haven't had any money since the exhibition," said Willy Nilly. "I don't know how to raise any. We can't sell the food we raise as all the people around have all they need and wouldn't pay us anything for ours."

"Every little repair job I've done of late for any one who has happened around I've said was so trifling that I didn't want any money for it, and now no one expects to pay. We hardly ever need any money in Puddle Muddle, but oh dear, oh dear, now we do."

"If you hadn't wasted all that money having your picture taken every few minutes at the exhibition," Jelly Bear said to Top Notch, "you could be of some help. But you're so vain you had to see yourself photographed. That was such a waste!"

"If you hadn't spent all your money which you, too, got as a reward for flagging the train, you'd be of some help yourself," returned Top Notch. "And how did you waste that money? By eating chocolate taffy until you were sick, you greedy thing."

"There, there," said Willy Nilly. "No quarreling. We've all got to help Rip."

"I've got an idea," said Top Notch. "There is an exhibition of splendid roosters and fine hens and beautiful chickens in the village beyond ours. I'll go to it and win the first prize and save Rip."

Building of Power Line Told Rotary

A. G. Strickrott of the New York Power and Light Corporation brought the members and guests a motion picture story of the process of building one of the world's largest power lines between the capital district and New York city at the meeting of the Rotary Club in the Governor Clinton Hotel Wednesday noon. This difficult task, employing an army of 1,800 men, covering an area of 145 miles through swamps, rivers, rocky land and natural hazards of all descriptions was brought to the audience through the eyes of a camera, and the picture description of this gigantic piece of work proved to be one of the most interesting entertainment features that the Rotary has enjoyed in some time.

All of the scenes were taken by Mr. Strickrott, and showed the project from the time of the first survey until the final completion of the job.

OLIVE TOWN BOARD INSPECTS FLOOD DAMAGE

The usual month-end session of the Olive Town Board was held Friday evening at the clerk's office in Olive Bridge. The members were all present, consisting of Supervisor Chester Lyons, town clerk; John Marshall and Justices Fred L. Weidner, Lamar S. Davis and Henry Winchell. Prior to the meeting the August board together with their charming wives were served with refreshments on the lawn by the genial hostess, Mrs. Marshall.

Just as the afternoon was dipping its rays behind majestic old High Point mountain several group pictures were taken in which, according to expressed fears on the part of Mr. Winchell, mercy not justice may be hoped for.

During the business session a group of bills were audited and a discussion in regard to the flood damage and needed funds formed a principal part of the business routine. Due to the sudden illness on the part of Supervisor Lyons the meeting was adjourned without unnecessary delay and the board decided to make an inspection trip to the flood damaged area Monday morning. This matter was duly carried out. The members met sans Judge Winchell and walked from the torn-out section of highway along the Wittenberg stream on to the head of the valley at Moonhaw Club. They likewise made an inspection trip by auto up Watson Hollow. The consensus of opinion among the viewing town fathers and shared by Commissioner Will Jordan is that it would be to the interest in the light of general welfare that a shovel of sufficient size should be obtained preferably by purchase and set to work opening a wide course up through the bed of the Bushkill stream as a month's work for a shovel lies ahead in carrying out this needed plan.

SERVICES SUNDAY AT WEST SHOKAN CHURCH

West Shokan, Aug. 31.—Sunday school was held as usual Sunday at 1 o'clock. Next Sunday's lesson topic will be, David. Scripture text: 1 Samuel, 16:1-13. Golden text: "Man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart."—1 Samuel, 16:7.

Mrs. Bertha Thompson, superintendent, presided. Musical selections were, "Faith of Our Fathers", "In the Garden", and in closing, "The Church in the Wildwood". Time of Sunday School services next Sunday remains at 1 o'clock. A friendly welcome is extended to all.

Revelation, chapter 20, by request, provided a fitting text for the Sunday afternoon preaching service. The sermon which was presented by the Rev. Carl F. Ahrens was highly pleasing and made plain the true meaning of many of the more difficult to understand phases of the chapter. The services was specially featured by appropriate and well-rendered singing selections, the first of which was "Ivory Palaces", as a soprano solo by Miss Wye, a talented city visitor. She was accompanied on the chorus by Mrs. Genevieve McLean. Mrs. Ahrens presided at the organ. At the close of the sermon Mrs. McLean and her sister, Mrs. Mildred Allen, favored with a soprano and alto duet, "My Heavenly Father Watches Over Me", with Mrs. Ahrens at the organ. Next Sunday, following the Sunday School, the church service will be held at 2 o'clock. It is hoped that visiting talent will again be present.

Porcupine Does Not Hurl Quills at Its Enemies

That a porcupine throws its quills is a common error, made by Longfellow in his poem "Hiawatha" when he said: "From a hollow tree the hedgehog, With his sleepy eye looked at him, Shot his shining quills like arrows." The quills are loosely inserted in the skin and may be detached by a violent shaking of the body or by contact with other objects. When attacked the porcupine thrashes about actively with its tail, often causing quills to be detached and embedded in the flesh of the attacker. John Burroughs says: "Touch his tail and like a trap it springs up and strikes your hand full of quills. The tail is the active weapon of defense; with this the animal strikes. It is the outpost that delivers its fire before the citadel is reached. It is doubtless this fact that has given rise to the popular notion that the porcupine can shoot its quills, which, of course, it cannot do."

At The Theatres

Today.

Kingston: "Voltaire." The inimitable Arliss scores another glowing dramatic success in this, his last picture for Warner Brothers. Picturesquely, realistically, he brings the fascinating Voltaire to the talking screen, and the poet-patriot of France lives and breathes again through the artistry of Mr. Arliss. Voltaire, philosopher, writer, comedian of the king, and the one man the king's mistress, Madame Pompadour, can trust, senses the coming of the French revolution and warns Louis XV. The king refuses to listen, while the pauperized and downtrodden peasants kindle the flames of revolt. In an effort to show the king the error of his ways, Voltaire writes a play showing the injustice of the king. This angers the king greatly, and only the cleverness of Voltaire keeps him from being thrown in prison for displeasing the king. Done on a magnificent scale, by a capable cast in support of the star, this picture is one of the best and finest historical dramas to grace the screen since "Disraeli." The show is entirely Mr. Arliss', but the excellent work of Doris Kenyon, Reginald Denny and Alan Mowbray shouldn't be overlooked. Four star entertainment.

Orpheum: "The Animal Kingdom" and "Bring Them Back Alive." Feature number one has long been heralded as one of the finest talkies to come to the screen. Sophisticated, sparkling, witty, it blends the complex lives of the characters into a dramatic masterpiece, with love the reason for everything. Myrna Loy, Leslie Howard, Ann Harding and William Gargan are members of a distinguished cast. "Bring Them Back Alive" is a Frank Buck animal picture. The shots are exceptional, and nerve and courage were the only means of bringing this unusual animal picture to the screen. Fights between savage beasts, their habits and methods of living, all these things have been placed into this entertaining and engaging talkie.

Broadway: "The Woman I Stole". Jack Holt returns to his desert oil fields after some time spent in civilization, and discovers that conditions are far from satisfactory. The man in charge of the fields is in league with a bandit chieftain, and to make matters even worse, Holt falls in love with the wife of another man. The man discovers this, tells Holt and his wife, played by Fay Wray, what he thinks of them, and goes to pieces from drink. They decide to run away, but at the last Holt realizes that honor is greater than forbidden love, and the show comes to a dramatic and unexpected end. Noah Berry and Donald Cook are also in the cast. Raquel Torres also has a small part she uses to good advantage.

Tomorrow

Kingston: Same.

Orpheum: "Melody Cruise" and "The Big Cage." One of the best of the current Orpheum double features is this twin bill that has all the elements of successful entertainment. The first, "Melody Cruise" is especially worth seeing because it offers Chick Chandler, well known Kingston vaudeville player, in one of the important roles. In fact Mr. Chandler almost runs away with the honors. Charles Ruggles, Greta Nissen and Phil Harris are also in the cast. The cross section of circus life with full plot concerns the adventure of a measure of excitement thrown in on a slightly inebriated gentleman aboard a steam going vessel, and the troubles that arise when a couple of girls are found in his stateroom. "The Big Cage" is a circus thriller, with Clyde Beatty, world's greatest wild animal trainer, doing his stuff before the movie camera. For a show of excitement thrown in on the side, this show is hard to beat.

Broadway: Same.

NO radiator...NO water... no stopping for 10 hours

136° in Death Valley!

CAN YOU imagine driving your car for ten hours without stopping, with the thermometer sizzling up around 136 degrees—with no radiator on the car and no water circulating through the engine?

Socony-Vacuum did it in Death Valley!

Stripped of its radiator—minus water—the car shown to the right started out on the sun-scorched track staked out on the desert floor. Started—and kept going! Eight—nine—ten hours!

If ever there was a test of gasoline—this was it! And yet Socony Ethyl functioned perfectly—no spitting or stalling—no loss of power—no motor trouble.

Play safe this summer. If you are driving a new car, you need Socony Ethyl for best performance. And thousands of owners of older cars have proved that the next best thing to a brand new car is Socony Ethyl in their present cars. Remember, THE HOTTER THE DAY, THE MORE YOU NEED SOCONY ETHYL!

As a matter of fact, all through the depression we have maintained wages at the 1929 level. Our employees have not suffered from cuts, layoffs or shut downs.

Neither have we reduced our advertising. During 1933 we plan to use approximately 9,000,000 lines of newspaper space. 30,000,000 booklets will be distributed from house to house, covering every state in the Union.

Latest sales reports show that the year to date is 14% ahead of last year. We do appreciate this evidence of the confidence of the American people in the Pinkham products.

Walcheren Natives Are Happy as They Dream On

An island the Dutch wrested from the sea remains as one of its prized sections. Long before Hendrik Hudson, some 320 years ago, set out on his voyage to the western world the Dutch were extending their national shores by fighting the sea, and Walcheren stands as part of the result of their efforts.

Life in Walcheren lets the rest of the world go by willingly and freely. Walcheren's natives are content to live in their dreamy way—wooden shoes, old Dutch customs and dress, windmills, ancient churches and plenty of cheese.

There is no night-life gayety in Walcheren, to be sure, but there's a little bit of bad in every good little girl, and so, while the signs of the beach say "Verboden te Baden" (forbidden to bathe), the girls roll up their dresses and go wading. But lipstick and powder are still foreign things to them, and as they congregate outside their churches Sunday mornings they all have healthy, rosy complexions, but not bought and paid for in a drug store.

Furs and the Falling Leaf

New York—Ocean liners have been coming into port recently bringing home celebrities of one sort or another mostly very well dressed. There has been a noticeable repetition of the leaf motif on or in many of the costumes. It may be in the print, or in the trimming, or as a decorative note on an accessory. Anyway, it's autumn and the leaves are beginning to fall.

It's the season, too, in which there is a good deal of chatter about this influence and that. A good deal of credit is given to the movies as a style inspiration, "Cavalcade" and Mae West being the two most frequently cited sources. They are both important, but keep calm and cool through the first violent agitations over them.

You've got Russian and Chinese and Edwardian and Central American and any number of other temptations to resist or fall for, not to mention Spanish and—well, you know how it is at the beginning of most seasons.

If you are uncertain about fur, let me hasten to assure you that nothing in the animal kingdom is discriminated against conspicuously. The doors are opened wide to admit the entrance of the Alaskan seal, gone from these parts many years. Some one has decided on chinchilla rat as a contestant for favor. Muskrat, among the lowlier pelts, is advocated, especially for lining the two-third length coats. Ermines and foxes and all the rest of the animals are lined up for approval, not forgetting the lamb family, and more especially the black sheep. Furs will be used in bands, and muffs and on and for hats.

Fur capes of various lengths are shown, and as usual there are any number of new collar treatments, the main thing to remember being that collars are erect.

An ostrich mixture knit tweed is featured for the skirt and sleeves of the two-piece suit having chamois for the body of the broad shouldered blouse. Hand crocheted fabric to match the tweed is employed with the leather.

Velvet, and Trimmed at That

Copyright, 1933, by Fairchild

At left is illustrated a turban of Admiral blue velvet, with the high back and cuff front cleverly introduced. The drape from side to side is of further interest.

The other model is of black velvet, with the crown worked into a high flange, and with the visor brim in front, tapering to a narrow flat one at back, where pink and rose ostrich tips are used.

New Tricks Alaskan Seal Learns

Mainbocher offers inspiration by suggesting topcoats to be cut in black chinchilla like a child's reefer, double-breasted, dressier topcoats padded for warmth in the case of velvets, for example, a very sportsy coat buttoned up the front like a smock, for wear with plus fours, coats with closings and hems trimmed in Alaskan seal or fox, and vest ideas adopted as a trimming for the back of the coat, which is developed in fur and cut exactly like a man's vest.

DID YOU KNOW THAT

Furs are used chiefly in bandings in the Patou coats, edging a deep flat U-shaped collar at the back, for instance. Beaver, silver and blue fox, astrakhan and some skunk are the furs used.

Great fabric interest prevails, surprise is expressed at the amount of metal fabrics shown, including printed metal, lacquered weaves which are talked about because they are Oriental looking.

Howe About:

Pine Shingles Not So Crazy Classical Educations

By ED HOWE

SEVERAL years ago I had occasion to put a new roof on a house, and was talked into buying one of the best of the patent shingles now being offered by enterprising agents as better than old-fashioned pine. I have had constant trouble with the roof ever since. The man who sold me the patent roofing after trying several times to make it satisfactory, finally admitted the best roofing material for the ordinary cottage is the old-fashioned pine shingle of first grade. Any new idea is a risk until it has been practically tried out at least a hundred years. I will remember that this summer when tearing off the patent roof to replace it with old-fashioned pine. Thus I learn; thus everyone learns.

• • •

In a certain town there is a man everybody says is crazy. Lately he wrote a letter for the Public Mind column of the local paper, and the editor printed it exactly as written, as a "joke." The man can't spell, but expresses more clear common sense about public affairs than I have known a citizen to write in years. He opposes the present mania for inflation; for government help for everybody; says the only remedy is economy, industry, better behavior, and less politics, and agrees with Europeans generally that Americans seem determined to commit suicide. A man knowing that much isn't crazy.

• • •

Americans not educated themselves have a tremendous notion of the benefits to be derived from a classical education. I met a farmer recently who had lost his farm because of sending three sons to college. This father believed that a classical education would specially arm and equip his children for their battle with life, but he told me that, after graduation, his sons returned home, and he could not see they had been benefited. Employers even had a prejudice against them, and many ignorant foreigners were being given employment when his sons could not get it.

• • •

In the exchange of every dollar there is an element of dishonesty on one side or the other; in every legal transaction as much dishonesty as the traffic will bear. The law itself leans toward dishonesty, as a tribute to human necessities. A man may keep well within the law and still exercise considerable of his naturally roguish disposition.

What is all this human bargaining about? In every case a man or woman declaring to another he is asking too much. It is the first job of all of us to become capable traders; if we are not, we are robbed.

Why do we have locks on all our doors? Why are taxi drivers, street car conductors, clerks, compelled to ring a bell when they take in a cash fare? Why are county treasurers, all classes of officials, bonded? It is acknowledgment of the universal belief in dishonesty.

Just recently twenty of the world's most prominent business men were investigated by congress. The first one called to the witness stand said: "We keep well within the law."

Visit an Indian camp and the bucks will all say: "I'm a good Indian."

We all know we are under suspicion and what is expected of us: to keep well within the law—to be good Indians.

• • •

Every man handles the women a little differently. I have a neighbor who has walked out on three wives ("quit them cold," as the neighbors say). Still another man I know well has been thirty-four years getting rid of one, and isn't entirely out of the woods yet. . . . In meeting the emergencies of life—and, with men, women occupy first place in creating them—I have come to believe the most honorable way is pretty generally the easiest way. For instance: The husband who has walked out on three wives badly crippled himself three times, whereas the other man, who displayed more fairness, is still going fairly good.

• • •

After you become old (as I am) you will find one of your heaviest burdens is being regulated too much. . . . I do not object to proper regulations, but I am regulated daily and hourly when I have not offended, and regulation is not necessary. I try to meet the natural duties of life with patience, but am heavily burdened by regulators self-appointed, and who should, in any fair consideration of fairness and common sense, let me more quietly pursue my natural tasks.

• • •

In our attempts to acquire learning, we have unhappily learned much we must unlearn.

• • •

I have frequently noted the man who is always telling what he says to his wife, something after this fashion: "Sweetheart, don't you think a little vacation would do you good? You are not looking any too well this spring, darling, and I am worrying about you," etc. . . . I rarely like such a husband.

• • •

I have no sympathy with the old cry that men should love each other; decent toleration of the faults of each other is all the Lord expected—more than we grant.

Bees and Noise

Some beekeepers believe that any loud noise such as shouting, ringing bells, beating pans, etc., will make bees settle. The United States Department of Agriculture has declared: "No one known yet whether bees can hear or not, at least no one has ever discovered their hearing apparatus. A person is wasting his time when he hammers on a dishpan to bring down a swarm of bees." While it is a very old belief or superstition that bees can be made to settle by this means, it is at least questionable as to whether the bees hear any of the noise.

Favorable Report From Beer Board

In the first report of the Ulster County Alcoholic Beverage Control Board to the State Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, the county board pointed out that it believed that various local businesses had been favorably affected by the legalization of beer, including trucking, barrel, building trades, and furniture.

In answer to a questionnaire sent out by Mrs. John S. Sheppard, member of the state board, to all county liquor control boards, designed to collect information on the effect of beer and the operation of the beer control law, the county board reported that one beer garden had been licensed. Beer gardens are allowed in the state law as legitimate places where beer may be sold and drunk in temperate quantities with food.

M. J. Powers is executive officer of the Ulster board whose members are M. L. Goldrick and P. M. Park.

It's Hog Calling Time—For Cash

Uncle Sam is going in for hog calling in a big way, his aim being to take one out of every six hogs from the feed lots, so as to cut the coming crop. Under the plan the farmer marketing his eligible hogs now gets a premium. The chart shows the inverse relation between hog slaughter in Germany and Denmark, combined, and United States exports of hog products, these exports being expressed in hog equivalents (160 pounds equals one hog).

WEST SHOKAN

West Shokan, Aug. 30—The proceeds of the annual West Shokan Church fair and supper held on August 23, provided the very tidy sum of $122.41.

The department of water supply road maintenance force has been well occupied cleaning up along the boulevard where overflowed sluices left their residue of stones and silt upon the roadbed. A great hole was gouged out around the abutment at the north end of the second Bushkill concrete bridge.

The cool clear weather Tuesday evening with the growing full of the harvest moon provided a perfect setting for the holding of the Samsonville M. E. Church clambake, which attracted crowds from far and near. The first serving was at 6 o'clock and continued until upward of 200 had sat and feasted to their most decided satisfaction. It was indeed a real home coming and one of the most successful church affairs put on by the good Samsonville folks in a long time. Everything on the menu was provided in an abundance and each morsel pronounced as simply delicious.

As per schedule things are whipping themselves ship-shape for the department of water supply employees' annual classic, the fifth holding of their "clambake" in the time-honored pit style, which event takes place Saturday afternoon at the Olive Bridge pine nursery grounds, on the south swing of the boulevard below the Ashokan main dam. Tickets are going rapidly and anyone not yet supplied may consult Foreman Virgil C. Gordon, Oscar Dudley, Lester B. Davis or other members of the D. W. S. force. This year's event is expected to prove just the best ever.

According to the carefully noted rain record kept by Joseph H. DeWitt, sage of Cool Breeze Farm, Shokan, 20 inches of water came with the deluge of last week.

The devastation wrought to the Watson Hollow and Moonhaw valley roads is gradually being repaired by the combined efforts of the 125 men detached for duty from the Boiceville camp and the local road forces under Commissioner William Jordan. Tuesday noon a passage had been opened to Moonhaw Club, cut off since the flood tide early last Thursday morning when a 150-foot section of roadway below Camp Superintnedent Ralph Cranders was completely gouged away. This point has since been a concentrated objective of attack, with unnumbered tons of rocks dumped behind the log barrier put in position on Sunday. Great trees cut from the woods adjoining were hauled into position along the creekside and shorter lengths placed crosswise with notched ends set in between, holds these main timbers securely from spreading when weighted down with rocks.

The Watson Hollow road was made passable Saturday when a lifted bridge was replaced and the torn-out road temporarily filled in at the turn near the residence of Abel Every. Connection with occupied bungalows above were restored to connection with the outside world after two days' isolation.

The Peekamoose road beyond Watson Hollow will remain for weeks perhaps impassable as the bridge at the lower forks although remaining in position has part of both abutments torn out and beyond to the top of the mountain the steeper sections are badly washed and gullied. The second bridge and its abutments to all appearances weathered the rush of waters in good shape. Once the Moonhaw road has been given the necessary attention progress will be hastened toward more complete repairs up Watson Hollow.

Miss Katherine Shaeffer of Brooklyn, who has been spending a two weeks' visit with friends in West Shokan Heights, returned to the city Tuesday via bus.

Messrs. Greenberg and Levy, proprietors of the justly famous Broadhead High Point boys and girls' summer recreational camp, were business callers here on Monday. The season now drawing to a close has proven the most successful of any of the seven previous years. Mr. Levy left Tuesday morning on a short business trip to New York city.

Mr. and Mrs. Case J. Gwinn of Woodridge, N. J., have arrived for their annual vacation stay extending over Labor Day. Mr. and Mrs. Gwinn as is their usual custom are among other groups of prominent visitors stopping at the Burgher house.

A family gathering and clambake was held Tuesday at the Shokan camp of Mr. and Mrs. George Van Kleeck of Samsonville Heights.

It is learned that Mrs. Myron Myers of Samsonville is a patient in the Benedictine Hospital due to an appendicitis operation. Mrs. Myers's many friends wish for her speedy recovery.

The recent hot weather tended to create a longing for gas refrigerators among residents of the southwest Olive sector where electricity has not yet been made available. Among those who hastened to place orders and eagerly await delivery are George Van Kleeck, the Leo Flanagans and Mrs. Dorothy Jones of the Freeman Every place and Hardy Van Kleeck respectively.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Gaignet of Long Island spent over Saturday and Sunday with others of the family group holding forth at Tuckaway Farm. On Tuesday afternoon Mrs. William Jones of Main street was entertained as a Tuckaway caller.

The sullen deep reddish flood waters chastened within the confines of the upper and lower basins of the Ashokan reservoir chafe at their bounds and howl out their woes harmlessly after their wild devastating rushes from the far and near sources of the rugged Esopus watershed.

Mrs. Philip Dwyer has been unusually feeble of late and under the constant observance of her ever faithful daughter, Mrs. Katherine Sherman. Mrs. Dwyer has been practically an invalid for several years past and unable to leave her chair without assistance.

The present just glorious type of weather leads one to forget for the moment the recent flood and its devastation. Nights are permeated with an unmistakable tinge of September now at the very threshold. Now that the long pent up rainy period seems settled, it is not too much to expect weeks of pleasant weather to lie ahead.

Miss Lillian Diefenbach, veteran operating room nurse at St. Barnabas' Hospital, Newark, N. J., is about to resume her strenuous duties after spending her annual August vacation at Hemlock Knoll, Shokan, there sharing the unstinted hospitality of the genial Mr. and Mrs. Golden Van Benschoten. This year Miss Diefenbach was accompanied by Miss Gene Smith of Brooklyn, an accomplished young lady recently graduated from high school.

Mountain climbing, picking huckleberries and fishing have been favorite diversions under the skilled guidance of Mr. Van, who knows this section of the mountains and valleys almost foot by foot.

The Saturday night dance held at Colange Hall proved its usual popular social feature of the week-end. Manager Howard Lucht has announced a number of specially attractive features for the coming affair, the Harvest Moon Festival, climaxing a highly successful summer season.

Summer residents about the community are leaving. At West Shokan Heights a decided thinning out took place early in the week.

Charles H. Weidner and Sheriff Claude Bell a few weeks back when the weather was arid and water low spent considerable time and effort lowering the bed of their mountain rill reservoir located at an elevation in the Hickory Hill property. Lucklessly however their efforts were doomed for failure as the trickling rill ran a river during the flood and just completely tumbled the well defined pool full of rolling stones. Doubtless other stream reservoirs about the locality were similarly treated by the elements.

The West Shokan Heights road, although nowhere made impassable, shows plainly the effects of the freshet. At Jordans corner considerable washing occurred where the Jocky brook spread wide in its descent down its course.

LIQUOR AIRPLANE IS CAPTURED NEAR GLENS FALLS

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 21 (AP).—An airplane heavily laden with choice liquors and wines was under guard at an airport here early today and two men were in jail pending arraignment, seized last night by customs agents and a Canadian Northwest Mounted Policeman as the machine zoomed to a landing on a rambling farm fifty miles north of here near Glens Falls.

Tipped off after weeks of investigation in both the United States and Canada that the plane was to land on the northern farm, four officers drove their car into the ship's path as it rolled to a stop and took into custody men giving their names as Charles Loveley, 27, and Joseph Morphelows, 42.

Morphelows thrust a .30 caliber rifle, with a magazine attached, in the officers' faces but was quickly overpowered. Loveley was piloting the ship.

PORT EWEN

Port Ewen, Aug. 31.—Choir rehearsal will be held in the M. E. Church at 7:30 this evening.

Miss Lois Jump is visiting her cousin, Miss Leta McKean, in Hensonville.

The rehearsal for "Henry's Wedding" which was to have been held in the M. E. church house Friday evening will be held in the Reformed church house instead.

Members of the Methodist Church and congregation are cordially invited to attend a reception for the Rev. and Mrs. J. Thoburn Legg, in the church house at 8 o'clock Friday evening.

Hope Lodge, No. 65, K. of P., will hold its regular meeting Friday evening.

There are a number of other important characters in the great show, "Henry's Wedding" and a number of these have already been chosen from prominent local actors in the community. All are rehearsing to make this the most outstanding production ever staged in Port Ewen. A. Short as Uncle Henry, Clara Tinney as Samantha Green, his fiancee, Eltinge Tinney will take the part of Jack Macey, Uncle Henry's nephew, who tries to keep his uncle from getting married so he can get married himself and collect the money from his grandfather's will. The part of his fiancee, Mary, is played by Mary Gray Legg, and she has a great deal of difficulty trying to understand all the strange actions that Jack goes through with in his attempt to kidnap his uncle. He first wants to postpone the wedding and then hurry it up. Few people have to go through the trials and tribulations these people do on their wedding day. Jack's two boy-friends, Ted and Harris, are played by Harold Clayton and Fred Spalt and they are willing and ready at all times to help Jack because Harris has $1,000 coming to him and Ted has $20 which he calls for at every opportunity. Ted's and Harris's girl friends, Virginia and Marie, are played by Lillian Lapine and Gladys Tinney and they add a great deal to the production. Other important characters, who have been chosen, are O'Flarety, the hard-boiled, egotistical detective, who attempts to solve all the mystery of the kidnaping and this character is played by Mead Davis and his assistant, Mugs, is played by Bob Clark. Ray Howe, Lawyer Brown, is an outstanding character, and makes love in a very dramatic way to Phoebe Ostrander as Susan Christopher, the jilted sweetheart of Uncle Henry. Lawyer Brown finally proposes and they get married with Jack and Mary, and Henry and Samantha. Other characters to make the story and wedding complete are Louis Semon and the Rev. J. T. Legg taking the part of two Chicago gangsters who are mixed up in the kidnaping of Uncle Henry and Mrs. James Tinnie as Eliza, the negro cook. Everyone who has been to the rehearsals state the show is a riot from start to finish and the most unusual type of production ever given.

Mrs. B. W. Brainard and daughter, Margaret, who spent some time with relatives in New York city, have returned to their home here.

Spencer's School To Teach Walton System

Recognized Authority on Accounting Systems and Secretarial Sciences—Fall Term Will Be Opened September 5.

Spencer's Business School, 237-239 Fair street, established for nearly 50 years, announces that it has secured the exclusive rights to teach the world's famous Walton Systems of accountancy, shorthand reporting, world's champion typewriting and secretarial sciences. These systems are the recognized authority on accounting systems and secretarial sciences the country over, and are used exclusively by many leading American colleges and universities. Professor Kelly says that never before has any business college in this locality been able to offer such outstanding, high grade courses as are now offered by Spencer's at such low tuition fees.

The courses are from six months to two years' duration. Upon the completion of any of the Walton courses, Spencer's School will issue its own diploma and also the Walton diploma, which is beautifully embossed on sheepskin.

Prof. C. L. Kelly, president of the school, assures the prospective students that previous knowledge of accountancy or secretarial sciences is not necessary, as the Walton system starts the student from the beginning and leads to the highest realms of accountancy and secretarial science, including private secretarial, shorthand reporting and court reporting.

Scores of young men and young women have already enrolled for the fall term which will begin on Tuesday, September 5. Prospective students are asked to send for a copy of "A Challenging Record" also a copy of their new 1933 catalogue, just off the press. Prof. Kelly extends to the public an invitation to visit Spencer's School and investigate its methods, equipment and Walton courses.

The management of Spencer's School would like to have it clearly understood that Walton courses are not, nor will they be offered by any other business training institution in this section of the state. Also that Walton courses are not the same courses that are used by other business or high schools. All Walton college and university grade courses are exclusively Spencerian, the same as used by leading American colleges and universities.

Registrations are now being accepted for the fall term and those wishing to enter on September 5 should enroll as soon as possible. The office is open every week day from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m., and on Saturday until noon. Night school will open on Tuesday, September 5, at 6:45 p. m. Labor Day the office hours will be from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. for inspection and arrangements. If unable to call personally, a card addressed to the Spencer's School will bring the official representative.

Labor Celebrates

The people of our great country have reason to rejoice. The "NEW DEAL" is putting millions back to work—increasing wages and salaries—Bringing back prices to the farmers so they again can sell their crops above cost—Manufacturers and retailers are submitting codes to eliminate vicious, unfair tactics toward labor and legitimate business.

Our President is arousing a new conscience in the minds and hearts of all to a realization that one's happiness and prosperity depends on the happiness and success of everyone.

In our small way we are sincerely trying to "DO OUR PART." We have signed the code, thereby increasing our payrolls. IN SPITE OF INCREASED COSTS OF MATERIALS AND LABOR, AND THE DEFLATION OF THE DOLLAR, WE ARE STILL OFFERING OUR PRODUCTS AND SERVICES AT PRICES BELOW LAST YEAR'S LEVEL.

Tourist May Now Carry Boat In Handbag In His Car

Inflated in a jiffy, this rubberized fabric boat fits into a compact case that takes up no more room in the car than the ordinary traveling bag.

Solution of the problems of lovers of the outdoors—persons seeking spots that can only be reached by boat, on waters where ordinary boats are not easily available—are the rubberized fabric boats now being manufactured by Goodyear.

In addition to being light in weight and easy to carry—occupying only a small space in the camper's pack—the new boats can be inflated in a very few minutes, and will remain afloat for an indefinite period. One-man, two-man, four-man and seven-man sizes are available, each equipped with an inflation pump and the necessary oars. Shaped somewhat like conventional boats, the new craft are constructed of extremely durable fabric, are very stable in the water and due to their width and buoyancy are almost impossible to capsize.

ZENA

Zena, Aug. 31—Last Saturday afternoon John Varney entertained at a house-warming in his cottage, recently completed, around the corner from his studio cottage. It is built upon a rocky ledge in the neck of the woods and affords a most wonderful view of the whole Overlook Mountain range and is a most picturesque location. Many natural seats have been hewn out of the rock. Underneath there is a large terrace porch and with its many natural rock gardens and spring one can't help but be fascinated with "Woods Neck." There was quite a gathering of guests among whom were many folks from the art, literary and musical groups which gather in Woodstock for the summer. Later in the evening refreshments were served and a massive bonfire lit up the premises at night. Mr. Varney as usual proved to be a most genial host.

Mrs. Stiedenrod and son, Henry, are spending the week at Pilot Hill Lodge, Danoigo Acres. They motored up from Flushing, L. I.

Services in the Reformed Church last Sunday were well attended and the 43 in the congregation took to heart every word of the sermon, "One Minute," by John Heidenreich. Next Sunday his topic will be "Our Work and God's Pay." Services begin promptly at 10:45 a. m.

The Sunday School of the church held its annual picnic last Tuesday under the most perfect weather conditions. The picknickers gathered at Wilson's grove at 10 a. m. and immediately started to play games. Of course a picnic would not be complete without the traditional baseball game and this one was between the girls and the boys and needless to say the girls won. At noon there was the call to lunch and a second call was not necessary for the 40 to gather around the festive board. All were treated to ice cream later in the afternoon following a treasure hunt for candy, which had been hidden all over the grove for the youngsters. It was a tired but thoroughly happy crowd that later left for their respective homes.

Miss Anna Klementis is spending the week in Astoria, L. I., and Miss Julia Thaisz is visiting in Catskill.

On Friday, September 1, the Zena Country Club will hold its regular monthly meeting.

Friday, September 8, afternoon and evening, there will be a church fair held in the social hall of the Reformed Church, sponsored by the Christian Endeavor.

OLIVE TOWN SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION IN 1898

Shokan, Aug. 31.—On August 21, 1898, the Olive Town Sunday School association met in convention at the Vly church. An address of welcome was made by Morris Ostrander, superintendent of the Sunday school at The Vly. A report from the Brown Station school, of which Mrs. Egbert Dederick was superintendent and Ora B. Lasher, secretary, showed a membership of 50 pupils and five officers. The evening devotionals were led by Hugh Brooks of Krumville, secretary of the association. As the speakers of the evening did not put in their appearance, a sermon was preached by the Rev. L. P. Gott, pastor of the Baptist Church, who took as his text, Phillippians, 3:11. Although the weather was very hot 35 years ago, the convention was largely attended and greatly enjoyed.

Allowing tomato pulp to ferment in the process of saving seed helps control the spread of bacterial canker, says the United States department of agriculture.

SEARCH FOR MEN WHO WERE BITTEN BY DOG

Shokan, Aug. 31 — Wednesday morning, about 10 o'clock, a stranger stopped at the place of Lewis Thiel, local poultryman, and inquired the way to Cold Brook and Mt. Tremper where he said he had heard there was work. Mr. Thiel, half an hour after directing the man, went into the house and turned on the radio, and was surprised almost immediately to hear a New York city police department broadcast announcing that two men who had been bitten by a dog, which subsequently was ascertained to have rabies, were on their way to Massachusetts and Mt. Tremper respectively. Mr. Thiel, though not at all positive that the man who stopped at his house is the one whom the police are trying to stop in order that he can be treated, nevertheless feels that it is a striking coincident, and that publicity through The Freeman columns may be the means of locating the right man.

Iowa produces more pop corn and timothy seed than any other state or nation.

There's an argument about which hand to use in forking meat into your mouth. Americans usually shift the fork and feed with the right hand, but there's no denying that you can feed faster with the left, keeping both hands in continuous action.

GIRL AND HER DOG KILLED IN FALL FROM APARTMENT

New York, Aug. 31 (AP)—A ten-year-old girl and her pet fox terrier, "Spots", fell to their death today from the roof of the six-story apartment house in which they lived at 1512 Townsend avenue, The Bronx.

The girl, Mary Lafferty, had been sliding down the slanting skylight on the roof with her pet in her arms for several minutes.

The last time she slid so fast that she was unable to stop herself and the weight of the dog probably added to the momentum which carried her forward until she toppled over the parapet of the roof.

FIND CHARRED BODIES OF MOTHER AND 3 CHILDREN

LaFollette, Tenn., Aug. 31 (AP)—The charred bodies of Mrs. Peal Johnson and her three children were found today in their bedroom after flames had swept their little home.

Lying beside the 27-year-old mother were the bodies of Louise, 10; Paul, 5, and Lois, a year and a half old.

The husband and father, Floyd Johnson, a filling station operator, said he escaped from the burning home through a window.

DOG WITH BROKEN LEG SAVES 4 PERSONS FROM FIRE

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 31 (AP).—Limping to his master's bed despite a broken leg, an 11 weeks old Irish setter today gave the alarm which saved four persons from fire which was sweeping their home.

The dog, its leg broken in a fall downstairs, crawled to the bedside of John Haushammer and awakened him by barking and tugging at the bedclothes. Haushammer noticed smoke in the room and aided his wife and her aged parents to the street. The dog, overcome by the smoke, was saved by firemen.

Governor Considers Sapiro Extradition

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 31 (AP)—Governor Herbert H. Lehman today again considered arguments for and against the extradition to Illinois of Aaron Sapiro, Chicago attorney, to face charges for conspiracy in a laundry racket, following a three hour hearing yesterday on a new application for his return to the west.

Before the executive was the statement that the State of Illinois plans to take Al Capone, gang leader, from his cell in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., and put him on trial in Chicago with Sapiro if Illinois can extradite the attorney from New York and get federal permission for Capone's return.

The University of Iowa library has passed the half-million mark in circulation for three successive years.

MY MEMORIES

By E. B. Rosman

The waves may wash the sands away
But memory etches deeply in joy and pain
Each moment of that blessed day
That never will come back to me again.

I wrap my arms around my memory
I live again the perfect ecstasy
Protected by my sad fidelity
You shall not take these thoughts away from me.

As a fitting tribute to those who have departed, nothing could be more appropriate than the setting up of one of our enduring memorials.

1933 Team Week At Camp High Point

Green and White week, the long awaited event, began in a riot of excitement on Wednesday night, August 23, at Camp High Point. The teams had been carefully paired off, the basis of the division being the accomplishments of the campers in the different events during the entire summer.

The Green team generals, Len Storay and Jackie Henri, were ably assisted by the staff consisting of Ruth, Peppy, Leah, Leona, Jean, Myra, Flatow, Kaufman, Messinger and Kessler. The generals of the White team were Irving Margolis and Lee Davis, assisted by Helen, Henny, Lottie, Essie, Florrie, Selma, Friedman, Breeker, Rubin, Sigel, Bradley. The judges for the entire contest were Sid Alexander, Sam Kessler, Bert Markowitz, Norman Cohen, Sid Steinberg, Pauline Susillo, Rose Dun, Janet Levy, and Eleanor Greenberg.

The events contested during the week were varied, consisting of an opening ceremony, senior basketball, inter-basketball, soph and midget basketball, decoration, sr., and inter volley ball, inter ping pong, sr., handball, soph and midget soccer, indoor games, sr., tennis, inter archery, soph handball, midget raid-the-flag, inter-handball, sr., archery, soph tennis, sr., and inter-baseball, soph and midget baseball, sr., ping-ping, inter-tennis, soph archery, track meet, tug-of-war, sr., and inter, soph and midget, parade, midget volley ball, varsity baseball, swim meet, songs and cheers, plays.

The mess hall was gorgeously decorated by both teams. The Green team's motif was the scene of a shipwreck and to say that it was beautifully done would be putting it mildly. The White team's decorations were the modernistic ideas, put into practice, in an up to date dining room. This event was won by the Greens.

The Sing, beautifully portrayed by both colors, was beautiful to the eye and most pleasing to the ear. The White's motif, The Sign of the Cross, was victorious over the Green's picturesquely portrayed, the Cannibal Isle.

The entrances to the mess hall and the exits were done in marching order to the accompaniment of songs, expressly written for the occasions. The remarkable precision of the children in all the tactics reflects the patience of counsellors and imparting the difficult details to the campers. Inspections of bunks, flag raising and lowering, general order at all times, table manners, appearance in dress, were all considered in scoring points for the sides.

The final event of the week was held on Monday evening in the boy's social hall. The White team presented "In The Net", while the Green team produced "A Night at an Inn". This very interesting contest was won by the Greens. The total score for the entire Green and White week was Greens 551 points, and the Whites 602 points.

The trip to Albany, postponed from last week, was a most successful and enjoyable one. It was a relief to the pent up feelings of the campers. The banquet, closing the season will be held on Sunday evening, September 3. The main feature will be the presentation of a comical, musical skit by the counsellors.

The directors deeply appreciated the efforts of the counsellors and campers in putting on the wonderful events of the team week. If you have enjoyed the season tell your friends—if you have not tell the management, and suggest ways and means through which the camp may be improved. Be constructive and not destructive for the management has done everything possible to make the season a healthy, and enjoyable one, as far as they have been able to do so.

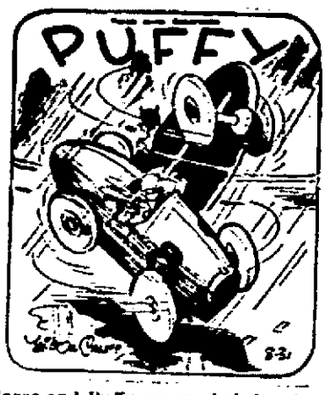
"Devil's Island"

The Saginaw valley in Michigan was a sort of "Devil's Island" to which tribe outlaws escaped and exiles were sentenced, says Indian legend.



Gasso and Puffy are on their last lap;
Puffy is wet from his toes to his cap.
On the last curve Gasso cuts in ahead.
And his car starts to spin, filling Puffy with dread.

TUNIC COSTUMES RETURN FOR FALL

Coat Dress Is Also Favored for Coming Season.

The tunic dress and the coat dress, two favorites of last season, will be worn again this fall.

One of the most effective costumes seen among the new fall models has a tunic of bottle green metallic silk, with a little white geometrical pattern. It pertains up the front to a plain, round neckline is worn over a skirt of matching woolen, and is finished off by a little green felt fedora, pulled smartly down over the eyes.

Another has a sleek silk crepe tunic in that grand shade called dregs of wine worn over a matching skirt. The new note is a six-inch split at the bottom of the tunic in back. Otherwise it has a wide, square neckline, with a clip at each corner.

As to coat dresses, they come in the new soft, rich tweeds that feel as soft of velvet. They button all the way up the front, or side front, to a neckline usually round and collarless. And many of the smartest have a necktie silk bandanna knotted about the throat and stuck down the front of the dress.

FEATHER NOVELTIES

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Early Paris collections carry the message that feathers of every description, and used in every conceivable manner, will adorn the fall and winter mode. Even during the summer months fashionable Parisiennes have been wearing stunning little toques made of pleated feathers and now the new velvet berets and draped turbans are coming in with feather trims which confirm the report that we are trending toward their vogue. Among the early arrivals there are many costumes which have been given an ornate accent with feather trimmings in the form of bows and cunning capelets and other neckline treatments. In creating the handsome dark green velvet scarf-wrap, which the standing figure in the picture is wearing, Lelong adopts a fancy ostrich trim with white dots pasted on ends of ostrich fronds which have been waxed. The little sketch in the inset shows an attractive shoulder cape formed of rows and rows of ostrich fringe. The hat has a corresponding feather. It is said that these little capelet and hat sets, variously interpreted and made of different types of feathers, will be very much in evidence during the coming months.

FLASHES FROM PARIS

Colored velvet ribbon trims felt hats.

White coque feathers trim white evening gowns.

Stitched and corded velvet hats are numerous in early showings.

Dress of New Crepe Is Acme of Designer's Art

Crepe Francoise, a sort of a crepe de chine, is used by Vionnet to make a tea gown that is well nigh perfect. It is so simple that you cannot believe your eyes when you see it. It is in that delightfully cool ice-blue shade that has a way of melting heat waves and sending them elsewhere. A rather high V decolletage in front, the crepe crosses demurely and fastens near the waist with a clip of brilliants. The sleeves are cut straight and stop about two inches above the elbow. The skirt falls in long loose folds to the floor, and the lovely splash of color comes in the sash of orange-red satin that ties around the normal waistline and falls to the hem of the skirt.

Nickel Buttons

Ornaments and buttons designed like hotcoins are among the new dress gadgets in the Paris collections. They are replacing to a certain extent the triangular clip which has been used on dresses and bags for some time.

Three livestock, valued at $797,715,000 January 1, 1933, topped the nation's inventory for that category of farm property.

"ANOTHER WOMAN" ENTERS LAMSON MURDER TRIAL

San Jose, Calif., Aug. 31 (AP).—Having presented testimony suggesting the existence of "another woman" in the life of David A. Lamson, the state called upon scientific witnesses today for the last phase of its attempt to convict the young Stanford University press representative of murdering his attractive wife, Aliene.

Mrs. Sara Kelley, Sacramento divorcee, whom state's witnesses mentioned as Lamson's companion on his many visits to Sacramento, was one of the witnesses remaining to be called by the state. From Carmel, Mrs. Kelley communicated with newspapers, denying her relations with Lamson had been anything more than a matter of friendship and business.

President Sets Out On Cruise To Capital

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Aug. 31 (AP)—President Roosevelt set out to sea from the docks here today at 12:15 p. m. aboard the yacht of Vincent Astor for a week-end cruise to the capital.

Before leaving his Hyde Park home, Mr. Roosevelt held a 20-minute conversation with General Hugh S. Johnson, the industrial administrator in Washington, who assured him that the new working agreement for the coal industry would be on his desk when he returns there next Tuesday morning. Apparently, the President also talked about the delay of Henry Ford in lining up with the rest of the automobile industry under the Blue Eagle but there was nothing said here.

MISS NANCE AND MISS DEYO TO BROADCAST FRIDAY

Miss Mary Deyo, former county chairman of the Ulster County Home Bureau, and now president of the Southeastern District Federation of Home Bureaus, and Miss Evelyn Nance, Ulster County Home Bureau manager, will broadcast from WGY at the regular Farm and Home hour, beginning at 1:30 Friday, September 1. This broadcast is one of a series of the "Canning Clinics of The Air" put on by the Home Bureau Managers of the Schenectady district this summer. They have been assisted from time to time by homemakers who speak from experience regarding the subject of preservation of food.

The broadcast Friday will vary a little from the usual method, as Miss Nance and Miss Deyo are appearing in an original skit which they have written for the occasion. Miss Deyo, taking the part of the homemaker in the play, goes to a Home Bureau office asking for help for the ladies of her community. Miss Nance takes the part of the Home Bureau manager in the office and they together talk over the problems that the making of jams, marmalades and conserves are sure to bring to most homemakers at this season of the year. Their playlet will probably be the second number on the Farm and Home Hour program.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS AND SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—All the ingenuity, if you want to call it that, that exists in Hollywood doesn't go into the fabrication of motion pictures.

Some of it goes to the maintenance of the film colony's reputation for wit and humor—humor of a brand that is often more practical than subtle.

Hollywood loves a "gag" and is willing to pay for it. After all, it has a name for bizarre doings, and good clean fun is good clean fun in any town.

A Horse! A Horse!

It cost somebody something to rent a bedraggled old nag one Christmas and leave it, appropriately draped with wreaths and holly, at the doorstep of Sally Eilers and Hoot Gibson. This same old nag plays a stellar role year after year in one practical joke or another. Lowell Sherman among others has found it tied to his front door.

Buster Keaton, driving his outlandish "land yacht," and attired in a gold-braided dress uniform, was one of the town's recent standing jokes. Lew Cody, as first mate, was a customary passenger.

Hollywood parties find queer settings, but the record to date probably goes to that social gathering—idea attributed to Ronald Colman—which progressed across town in a house that was being moved from one site to another.

From Toluca lake bulletins you'd gather that Jack Oakie is poisonous or at least mildly unpopular. There was a regular campaign, supposedly headed by Richard Arlen, to "keep Oakie out of Toluca lake." It was just a "gag," of course—Arlen, Oakie and Gary Cooper recently cruised together into Mexico.

Vince Barnett, professional insulter now turned actor, has held the "gag" spotlight with his antics at dinners and parties.

No Sense To It

And Hollywood's "gag parade" goes on and on—Ann Harding, with brunet wig and souther. accent, plays "Sally Archan, Suh, from ole Vuhginyuh," at a premiere. Sally Eilers has a "christening party," the honoree her dog yclept Hooter. A once well-known actor gets annoyed by the nippings of a dog at his heels on the boulevard, takes a flying leap and makes news—man bites dog! Irrepressible Lupe Velez greets a guest with a buttered palm—

And it's all amusing—at least to Hollywood.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Aug. 31 (AP).—Pre-holiday apathy brought trading in the security markets almost to a standstill today and prices generally shifted about idly over an extremely narrow range.

Stocks started out with a mild rally, led by the alcohols, but the moderate upward flurry was of brief duration and most quotations soon drifted back to around their levels of yesterday. Many operators had already left town for the protracted week-end. Wheat was a trifle heavy at one time, but other grains and cotton fluctuated in unimportant fractions. The dollar sagged a bit in foreign exchange dealings, but there was no pronounced pressure against the American currency. Bonds moved listlessly.

Shares of National Distillers got up some 4 points at one time, and those of Schenley, U. S. Industrial Alcohol and American Commercial Alcohol advanced 1 to 2. Homestake Mining gained 5 and Alaska Juneau was slightly higher. Small gains were recorded by ase. U. S. Smelting, Consolidated Gas, American Telephone, Western Union, Chrysler and U. S. Steel. Liggett & Myers B was somewhat heavy, and issues of Du Pont, New York Central, General Motors and other issues eased.

While there were a few technical readjustments of accounts and evening up operations reported, in preparation for the three-day recess beginning Saturday, there were no indications of any extensive liquidation. At the same time, most traders were said to be maintaining a neutral position with the idea of waiting until after Labor Day to see "which way the cat jumps."

Renewed interest in the alcohol group was attributed partly to reports from Washington that, in view of the trend toward prohibition repeal, the authorities will permit legitimate distilleries to run at peak production at least until final disposition of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Those who attended the enjoyable party given by Charles Richards and Miss Ann Ingalls last Friday night were the following: Sylvester Wells and family, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Friedman, Mr. and Mrs. George Vonder-Osten, Morris and Alfred Rose, William Tuceling, Jr., Irving Weeks, Homer Markle, Jr., Herman Wendt, Charles Green, the Rev. August Pfaus, and the Misses Edna Longyear, Edith Lord, Margaret Windrum, Mary Elliott, Ann Didier and Barbara Tuceling.

Mrs. Gearon, mother of Edmund Gearon, who fell and broke her collar bone about two weeks ago, is getting along as well as can be expected, at the Gearon summer home adjoining the Reformed Church grounds.

Mrs. George Knickerbocker and children of Peekskill are visiting at the home of Mrs. Knickerbocker's sister-in-law, Mrs. C. A. Winchell.

Mrs. Raymond Osterhoudt went to New York city Sunday to attend the funeral of her cousin, Commissioner William F. Delaney, of the New York City Board of Water Supply, who died August 25. Mrs. Osterhoudt returned to her home at Brown Station on Tuesday, accompanied by her mother.

Add to things of beauty in the reservoir country, the large weeping willows along the north boulevard at the west branch of the Butternutkill. Previous to the construction of the boulevard system, 20 years ago, these trees were way off the beaten track, being back in the fields about half a mile from the old state road. Today their fronds wave gracefully over one of the most heavily traveled highways in the state and their beauty is seen and appreciated by thousands of persons daily.

John McKelvey is doing a good business with his camp grounds at Boiceville this season. Recently a tent was pitched at the picturesque spot in front of the house, where a stream of cold spring water pours from the bank year in and out, drouth or no drouth.

It is reported that 200 carloads of trap-rock are on the way to the Esopus Valley for use in repairing the damage done to the New York Central R. R. roadbed and yards by the flood of last Thursday. Probably a week will elapse before through traffic is resumed on the road.

The timothy aftermath is good in spots and a number of farmers expect to make a second cutting of this grass. On the Krekeler place there is a second growth of timothy that is heading out and which should make first rate fodder in about two weeks.

The employes in the twin villages of the Department of Water Supply are anticipating with no small degree of pleasure the annual clambake to be held at the Olive Bridge athletic field on Saturday afternoon, September 2. These bakes were inaugurated by the Board of Water Supply force employed on the construction of the reservoir about 25 years ago.

WEST ESOPUS.

West Esopus, Aug. 31.—A social gathering met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Johns on Saturday evening. Apparently all enjoyed the party greatly. At the time the birthday of Raymond Walsh of New York city was celebrated. He and his father were week-end guests here.

Mr. Walsh has his summer home occupied by Mrs. McAuley, daughter and grandsons. They will be greatly missed after their return to the city, for their presence here has added zest to an otherwise quiet summer.

Mr. Johns and son attended the county fair in Kingston on Friday.

John McCouley has a party of summer guests at his home, Mt. View.

Mr. and Mrs. P. McGuire entertained a house party over the week-end. Mr. McGuire has returned from New York city, where he visited recently.

William Kniffin, an elderly resident of West Esopus, suffered a paralytic stroke on Saturday.

Much sympathy is extended to all who sustained losses due to the serious flood situation.

Chinese Tree Goes to Sleep

The Chinese mimosa or silk tree blooms throughout the summer months as if it were rooted in the soil of China, its native land, rather than in the ground of its adopted country. The silk tree's blossoms are delicate little sprays of a deep pink that grow in clusters and then fall off to form a magic-like carpet below. The leaves, tiny green ovals, which grow on either side of a long stem, react to darkness much as a sensitive plant does to touch. When the sun goes down, they fold up and await coming of day again.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN J. GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

"From a long-shot perspective," writes Jim Reniek from Columbia, "it appears the football championship of the Western Conference will go to the team best equipped to endure a tough grind of suicide schedules or else with reserve strength of sufficient caliber to step in when the regulars falter.

"The conference as a whole has seldom lined up a harder group of games than it has for this fall. Most of the teams are heavily loaded up with important engagements early in the season.

"Ohio State, for instance, will face Michigan and Northwestern on successive Saturdays in October, a task which has brought grief to Buckeye coaches on more than one occasion.

"Northwestern, on the other hand, starts off with Iowa, and then meets Stanford, Indiana, Ohio State, Minnesota, Illinois, Notre Dame and Michigan in a row. If Indiana will attempt in October is to take on Minnesota, Notre Dame and Northwestern on successive week-ends.

"Chicago, launching its new deal program under the direction of Clark Shaughnessy, also goes to bat with a strenuous early season card, battling Purdue, Michigan and Wisconsin early in October.

Gophers' Schedule Tough.

"Among the hot championship contenders, consider the case of Minnesota. All the Gophers have to do is handle Purdue, Pittsburgh, Iowa and Northwestern in order. Michigan and Purdue have the best schedules among the leading title aspirants. The Wolverines will taper off on Chicago, Illinois and Iowa after playing Ohio State but will need to be at their best in November to handle Minnesota and Northwestern.

"Purdue has a comparatively light conference schedule. The Boilermakers' hardest Big Ten test will be on October 14 when they meet Minnesota. Then comes Chicago and Wisconsin, both of which figure as potential victims before the Lafayette crew smashes into Carnegie Tech and Notre Dame. If Noble Kizer's gridders can get through this much of their schedule unbeaten, Iowa and Indiana hardly figure to stop them on the home stretch.

All Have High Hopes.

"Conference championship hopes are blooming all over the mid-west. Michigan as usual will have a strong team although filling the shoes of Harry Newman may prove too tough for even Yost and Kipke.

"Ohio State with its veteran line virtually intact should be in the picture all the way, especially if Carl Cramer, the slippery quarterback, regains his 1931 skill.

"Northwestern will have another powerful team. Dick Hanley is keen to make up for the slump his Wildcats took last fall. His sophomore crop has great possibilities.

"At Wisconsin 'Doc' Spears has had time enough to develop his 'system' and the Badgers promise to be nobody's set-up. Such hardy contenders as Purdue and Minnesota are always bad boys to play with.

"Then, too, it's about time for Bob Zupke to rally the forces at Champaign. The Illini wound up the 1932 campaign with a rush, climaxing their play by holding the Buckeyes to a 3 to 0 count. This year Zupke will miss Gil Berry but in all-around strength he promises to be stronger than has been the case in years.

"Chicago, Indiana and Iowa no doubt will continue in the lower bracket, even though they'll probably grow increasing troublesome as the season advances."

Local Football Prospects Poor

As football news about college teams and big league elevens has crashed the headlines on the sports pages of the country, local followers of the pigskin game are beginning to wonder whether Kingston will have a Yellow Jacket team this fall.

As far as Louis Kantrowitz, manager of last year's Wasps, is concerned, there will be no team representing Kingston. Lou says he had his fill of managing football last season and will not attempt to round up a squad.

Kantrowitz's biggest accomplishment last fall was booking a game with Sing Sing prison and getting the Yellow Jackets in for a lot of publicity on some of the biggest newspapers in the country.

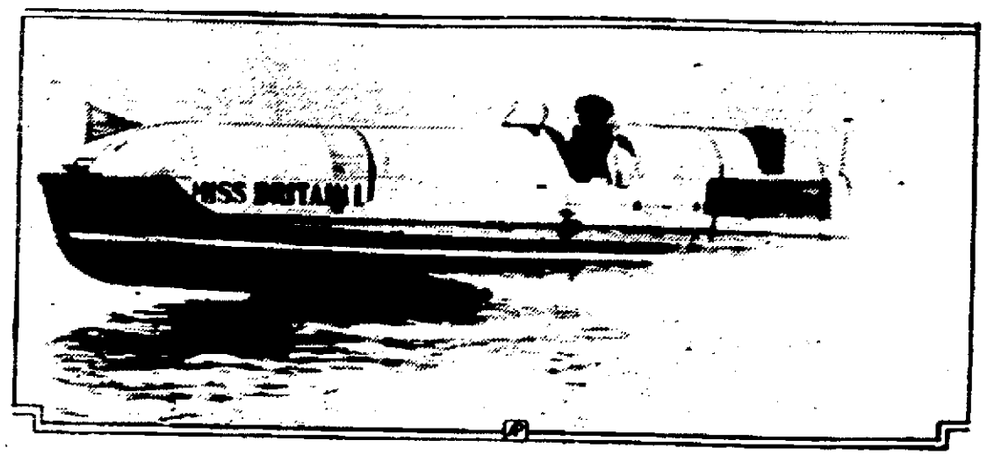
Don Beany of the West Point Artillery Detachment, who has played with the Yellow Jackets for several years, was in this city on a visit not so long ago, and said that he intends to run a team of his own this fall. His eleven will be made up of the cream of the football crop at the Point, Highland Falls and Newburgh. Whether he will bring the team to Kingston for any games he did not say.

WON DISTANCE SWIM FOR SECOND TIME

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 31 (AP).—Winning Canada's annual 15-mile swim in Lake Ontario, was getting to be a habit today with Marvin Nelson, brawny distance champion from Fort Dodge, Ia.

He won the event for the second time yesterday, becoming the first man in the history of the event to repeat. And in the bargain he clipped more than 10 minutes from the course record by ploughing the distance in seven hours, 35 2-5 seconds.

Scott-Paine Declares Miss Britain Will Be There At Race's Finish



Here's a view of the diminutive but powerful "Miss Britain III" skimming over the waters of the St. Clair river in a tune-up for the Harmsworth Trophy races, September 2, 4 and 5. The little water bullet leaves practically no wake, so high does it ride at full speed.

Tagging Major League Bases

By EDWARD J. NEIL.
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

Baseball's deep and abiding passion—a truly "crucial" series—gripped Boston and the National League today as Bill Terry's New York Giants ran their pennant chances into the gauntlet of the second place Braves.

The Giants brought a full six-game lead to Braves field, normally a discouraging outlook for the home folks, but it's been many a long and stormy season since any Boston club could thrill the faithful with a threat even that close. Both clubs won yesterday. They play six games in four days, and therein lies Boston's stoutest hopes. Terry's amazing pitching staff has been worked overtime beating off the Cubs, Pirates, and Cardinals for the past two weeks, with the seams spreading farther each day.

Bill McKechnie's advantage, if there is any, lies in the fact that his strongest pitchers are rested and ready. He has Ben Cantwell, the league's leading hurler, for the single game today with Bud Parmelee, batted out of the box by the Cerdinals Monday his probable opposition. For two games tomorrow, the single game Saturday, and the final pair Sunday, he can rotate Lefty Brandt, the veteran Tom Zachary, Fred Frankhouse, Huck Betts and probable Cantwell again in the second game of the final doubleheader.

Only Carl Hubbell, the brilliant scuthpaw, and Freddie Fitzsimmons, the fat right hander, have maintained their top pitching form for Terry in the bruising series just closed with the Cards.

Ruth Sees End Of Baseball Career

New York, Aug. 31 (AP).—The habit of writing finis to Babe Ruth's baseball career, a popular winter pastime for years, now has extended to the home run king himself.

"I guess I might as well hang up my spikes," he said mournfully last night. "I can't sign up as a player next year. The legs won't stand it. I might get by at first base, but not in the outfield. I'm through."

While the boys have been guessing him into the management of either the White Sox or the Red Sox next season, Ruth knows nothing about it.

Hurons Have Two Games at Pataukunk

The Huron Indians of Stone Ridge will not play Port Ewen Firemen next Sunday, but will go to Pataukunk instead. After arranging the game with them, the Indians claim, the Firemen called off the match in favor of a contest with the P. N. A. of Kingston. "They must have checked our record and then decided not to go through with the game", the Huron manager stated in writing that the contest had been cancelled. The Hurons will play at Pataukunk on Labor Day also.

Havana Cubans Will Play The All Stars This Afternoon, 5:45

NRA day will be topped off with a baseball game at the Fair Grounds upcown this afternoon between the Kingston All Stars and Havana Cubans, a team that is expected to give the local experts their toughest battle of the season. Starting time of the tilt is 5:45. A crowd is expected to witness it.

Manager John McCardle, realizing the strength of the Cubans, has three pitchers ready for duty—Ted Fraleigh, Dewey Van Buren and Lefty Martin, who probably will start the proceedings from the mound. Jack Robins will catch.

The rest of the Kingston lineup will be as usual, comprising the Bruhn brothers, Lutz and Fritz; Jimmy Merritt, Bobby Sickler, Charlie Lay, Pres Knight, Ed Burgevin, Tommy Davitt, Charlie Tiano and Messinger.

The Havana outfit will have all of its regulars on the job to compete with the All Stars, including Rodriquez, ace hurler formerly with the New York Giants, and Walla Walla Oms, the Babe Ruth of the Cuban forces.

Sunday afternoon the Scranton Colored Giants will return to the Fair Grounds in an effort to make it two straight over the All Stars, who believe that they will be able to make up for the recent game that they lost to the negroes.

Connelly Wins From Clows, 4-3

Wednesday evening at St. Remy, the Connelly A. C. outscored the Clow Dairy team of Kingston by a close margin of 4-3. Ed Scherer and Kozlowski formed the winning battery and Davis and Tomaseski that of the Milkmen. Joe Dulin and Hype Murdock of Connelly featured the contest with two hits apiece, a double and single. Murdock also made two nice catches in right field.

Sunday Connelly will play the Irish Block Nine of Wilbur at St. Remy, using Maurer or Becker as pitcher. Monday, Labor Day, the Connelly boys will resume their series with the Port Ewen Firemen at St. Remy. So far the Firemen have won two games and Connelly one.

GRAPHIC GOLF

PITCH AND ROLL

WITHIN a short distance of the pin and where the hole lies well back from the edge of the green, Bobby Jones generally pitches short, allowing the ball to roll the rest of the way. The ball is pitched sufficiently, however, to allow it to land on the putting green itself. No chance is taken on an irregularity of the ground spoiling the shot; which might occur if the ball came down on the fairway first. For this reason Jones increases the loft of his club in ratio to the ball's distance from the green. Near the putting surface a mashie iron can be used, the ball pitched to the edge and plenty of roll added. Further back a more lofted club is required to send the ball in an arc that will be sure to reach the vicinity of the green and stop near the cup. Thus the mashie, mashie niblick and niblick can be used at time for this play. The shot is generally straightforward without a sign of backspin.

Running Water Not Always Pure

That running water purifies itself is one of our oldest sanitary axioms—and yet the suggestion it carries is entirely wrong, says "How to Live." Standing water purifies itself to a much greater degree and in a shorter time. Pollution consists almost entirely of solid material in particles of various sizes. In quiet water these particles settle out, carrying most of the germs with them. Running streams keep themselves constantly stirred up and any pollution they receive is carried for a long time. It is not wise, therefore, to trust water that comes from a pretty spring or waterfall. The only safe principle is not to drink from country supplies at all, or, if this cannot be avoided, to do so only after the water has been boiled.

Prehistoric Burial Place

A prehistoric cemetery, which is believed to be four or five thousand years old, has been discovered at Asnieres, on the outskirts of Paris. Workmen, digging the foundations for a new building, found in a bed of sand enormous blocks of stone and human bones. Many completely fossilized bones have been dug out and deposited at the Mairie. One interesting point about the discovery is that it shows the care with which our prehistoric ancestors buried their dead. One block of sandstone, weighing nearly two tons, indicates that men must have pushed it, probably on rollers, for many miles in order to make a worthy monument.

Firefly's Illumination Puzzles the Scientists

Once it was thought that phosphorus was the cause of the luminosity of the firefly and its larva, the glow-worm, and the phenomenon was called phosphorescence.

But the substance of the luminous zones of these curious beetles has many times been exhaustively analyzed for phosphorus, without an indication of its being found, and the real nature of the firefly's glow remains a secret.

The key to the solution seems to lie in the fact that certain fats, oils and other substances exhibit luminosity when permitted to combine with oxygen in an alkaline solution. Just what takes place here is not known, but it is a form of combustion. In laboratory experiments the contact also produces a measureable amount of heat, while in the firefly and in luminous fishes and plants it does not appear to do so.

The light-producing organs of the firefly are unquestionably arranged to bring about this union of oxygen and a fatty secretion. The seat of the light is intensely luminous areas in the abdomen or thorax or both. Each is a specialized portion of the fat body, a plate situated directly beneath the skin, and supplied with nerves and fine tubes connecting with the trachea or windpipe.

The cells of these fatty places secrete, under the control of the nervous system, a substance which is burned during the appearance of light. This combustion takes place by means of the oxygen conveyed to the cells by the fine tracheal branches.

"Breeches Bible" First Printed in Roman Type

The "Breeches Bible," more properly known as the Geneva Bible, was an immensely popular English version which was the immediate predecessor of King James, or Authorized Version, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

During the reign of Queen Mary (1553-58), the Scriptures were proscribed, and many English Protestant leaders fled to the continent. A number settled in Geneva, Switzerland, and there several undertook a new revision of the Bible in English, which they published in Geneva in 1560. It was chiefly the work of William Whittingham, assisted by Anthony Gilby and Thomas Sampson.

The Geneva Bible was novel in several respects. It was the first English Bible to be printed in roman type instead of the old black letter; the first in which the chapters were divided into verses; and the first in which italics were used for expletory and connective words and phrases.

A peculiarity of text in the reading of Gen. 3:7, gave it the popular name of "The Breeches Bible." The rendition is: "The eyes of them both were opened . . . and they sewed fige-tree leaves together, and made themselves breeches." This reading occurs in every edition of the Geneva Bible, but not in any other version.

Three Boys Saved by Thrilling Rescue

Plattsburg, N. Y., Aug. 31 (AP)—Three Boy Scouts who clung for their lives to a tiny ledge 400 feet up on the rocky side of Wallface Mountain told today how they were saved from death after two days of privation and peril.

The scouts—Robert Glenn, Tyler Grey and William La Du—were nearing exhaustion and a probable fatal plunge down the perpendicular cliff into a gorge when rescuers, in a thrilling feat of mountaineering, hauled them to safety at the end of a 225-foot rope late yesterday.

Lifted to a higher ledge, they were brought down along a wild Adirondack trail. Today they were recovering at their Plattsburg homes from the effects of hunger and exposure to freezing winds.

The youths, who were trapped on the sharply sloping ledge when a piece of rock broke off behind them early Tuesday, suffered only slight cuts when they were hoisted up the mountainside.

"We were never frightened a moment during the two days we were prisoners on the narrow ledge," said William La Due.

"From the time we saw the plane come sailing ddwn over the mountain late Tuesday afternoon we knew we would be taken down and we just waited. The pilot came so close to us we could almost talk to him. Later we could see some of the rescue party climbing just before dark."

Do YOU Know—

That the candle fish, found in the river mouths off the northern Pacific coast of North America, is so named because of its extreme oiliness of flesh. The Indians convert them into candles by merely inserting a wick through the length of the body.

"Overhead Expenses"

Speaking in general terms, by overhead is meant those items of general expense of a manufacturing plant (for instance) which are additional to the cost of the labor and material actually entering into the production of the plant. For example, under overhead it is usual to group salaries of officials and clerical and other employees not directly concerned in producing, office expenses, all indirect labor, traveling expenses of salesmen, interest, insurance, legal expenses, care of plant. Depreciation also frequently is included under such head.

Worm-Catching Plants

Persons who may have thought that ferocious plants which capture and devour animals exist only in stories and the minds of their authors will be interested in a report by an official of the bureau of plant industry. These plants and their victims, he says, are so small as to be seen only through microscopes. They form a jungle from which they extend their feelers or limbs to capture the small worm-like animals as they pass along. The plant then releases a chemical strong enough to quickly dispose of the unlucky prisoner.

Polarized Light

Polarized light is a condition of the rays of light, including those of the infra-red and ultra-violet parts of the spectrum, resulting in their exhibiting different properties in different directions. Ordinary light is due to vibrations transverse to the direction of the ray, but varying so rapidly as to show no particular direction of their own. When these vibrations are given a definite direction, light is said to be polarized.

The Chihuahua Dog

One prominent dog authority has said that there is no other dog known to man that has had so much nonsense and ignorant misconception written about it than the Chihuahua. It was supposed to have been the product of cross breeding between various wild animals, including the Mexican squirrels, but this is all fallacy.

Coach Kias Names 34 Boys To Report For Uniforms On Friday

Names of Those Below Are To Report in the High School Gym Friday Afternoon at 1 O'clock—Uniforms And Physical Examinations Will Be Given At That Time—First Game September 23.

Coach C. Warren Kias of the Kingston High School football squad, issued a list, yesterday, of the 34 boys he wants to report for uniforms and physical examinations Friday afternoon at 1 o'clock in the Kingston High School gym. This is in preparation for the practice sessions which will begin Tuesday, the day on which Kias will also give the first call for candidates.

The first game of the season will be three weeks after the beginning of training. This is one of the shortest periods for conditioning a team that the local monitor has had in years. Eight games make up the local schedule, one of the toughest in some time, with the first combat on the grounds at Monticello against the high school of that village on September 23.

From the group of 34 boys and an army of new candidates, Kias expects to mould one of his best teams. Thirteen veterans, many of whom have starred in the same positions, appear on the list—Barth, Burgevin, Clarke, Cullum, Debrosky, Duffy, Every, Levy, M. Tiano, Tomshaw, Van Derzee, Van Valkenburg, and Zaccheo. There are holes in the line and vacancies in the backfield that will be filled by capable boys, who have been seasoned on the second string squad.

Losses in the forward wall and ball carrying section are about equal. Three stars in the line have taken their diplomas and departed from the Maroon—Charles Raible, ace center and All-Hudson valley first team choice; Myers, right tackle and great boulder in the line and Howard Murdock, right end and All-Hudson valley second team choice.

Behind the line, Gil Kelder, the sensation of the Maroon ball haulers, has not made an appearance and it is rumored he will not be with the local eleven; and Johnny Whitaker, a halfback of reputation, has also received his diploma.

However, the losses are light in comparison to former years and Kias has a wealth of material in a group of substitutes and second team members, who have been playing a brand of ball worthy of varsity, yet lacking the required experience. Now they are seasoned and with them, together with a star or two that usually develops from the new material, Kias is in hopes of hoisting the Maroon and White pennant to the top of the staff of the DUSO League this fall.

The names of the boys to report Friday are as follows: H. Baltz, C. Barth, H. Bowser, W. Buddenhagen, E. Burgevin, F. Clarke, J. Cullum, A. Davis A. Derbrosky, C. Duffy, L. Everett, F. Every, H. Fertil, L. Finley, D. Hyatt, E. Levy, W. Mallay, A. Melchoir, D. Murphy, E. Noa, M. Ryan, R. Saehloff, M. Tiano, T. Tomshaw, W. Van Derzee, C. Van Valkenburg, J. Zaccheo, G. Fitzgerald, H. Ferguson, L. Glennon, M. Gerwin, H. Hines and K. Saunders.

October 14, Kingston at Schenectady.

Olive One of the Oldest Fruits Known to World

There is one fruit with an ancient past, if ever there was one—the olive. It has been cultivated for 4,000 years and more.

The olive has always been a token of peace and purity. It is said that way back in the beginnings, when one country wanted to show off its good manners, it would present another country with a load of olive branches, to be planted and grown into olive trees.

Pickle olives, similar to our green olives of today, have been found in the ruins of Pompeii.

Olives are a product of sunny lands—Spain, Italy, Greece, northern Africa and California.

Virtually all our green olives come from the sunny slopes of Spain. No one knows just when or how the process of curing olives was discovered—except that it was thousands of years ago. Every packer in Spain still has his own jealously-guarded secret method of preserving olives. These familiar green olives, packed in glass, are carried by every grocer in the land.

Discovered Maple Syrup

The manufacture of maple syrup and maple sugar is purely an American industry. The first of the New England settlers exploring the Indian trails in the springtime saw the natives gashing trees with the tomahawks and sap flowing into hollow logs and bark containers. Soon maple sugar became the sugar of the early settlers, even as far south as Virginia and Kentucky. At first the white men followed the Indians' method of producing maple syrup and sugar. But it was not long before they learned that the Indians' deep gashes in the trees often injured them. Tapping methods were improved, but the evaporating process has changed little, except that more modern equipment is often used.

What this country needs just now:
What this country needs is more tractors and less detractors.
What this country needs is more paint on the old place and less on the young face.
What this country needs is not a job for every man but a real man for every job.
What this country needs is not more miles of territory but more miles to the gallon.
What this country needs isn't a lower rate of interest on money but a higher interest in work.
What this country needs isn't more young men making speed but more young men planting spuds.
What this country needs isn't more liberty but less people who take liberties with their liberty.
What this country needs isn't to get more taxes from the people but for the people to get more for the taxes.
What this country needs is to follow the footsteps of the fathers instead of the footsteps of the dancing teacher.

If you think you are poor now, you should remember that you came into the world without a thing in your pocket—in fact, you didn't even have a pocket.

Caller—Have you a few moments to spare, sir?
Capitalist—Young man, my time is worth $100 an hour, but I will give you ten minutes.
Caller—Thanks, but if it's all the same to you, sir, I'd rather have it in cash.

Another Business Man—Yes. He's a good lad. Doesn't smoke, whistle, gamble, or want to go to baseball games.
Business Man—Well, I'll say you are lucky.
Other Business Ban—Oh, he's got one fault. He won't work.

Recruiting Sergeant—So you want to join the army? Why?
Anxious Recruit—It's the only way I can get more war medals than my wife's first husband got—and then maybe I can get a little peace.

The chief trouble with this country is too darn many legal ways to steal.

One of the hardest things in life to understand is why the people we so thoroughly dislike should have the same feeling toward us.
